

Did you know that the Cape Cod Times parent owner is the Emirate of Abu Dhabi?

With companies today you have to follow the bouncing ball to find the ultimate or “parent” owner. It is also important to remember that with ownership comes control.

Cape Cod Times is currently listed as being owned by Gannet Corporation by Wikipedia, see the link directly below. Gannet Corporation is headquartered in Tysons, Virginia

https://en.m.wikipedia.org/wiki/Cape\_Cod\_Times

Wikipedia provides that Gannet Corporation is owned by Fortress Investment Group, see the Wikipedia link directly below. Fortress Investment Group is headquartered in New York City.

https://en.m.wikipedia.org/wiki/Fortress\_Investment

Wikipedia also provides that the parent company of Fortress Investment Group is Mubadala Investment Company, which is an Emirati state-owned holding company that acts as one of the sovereign wealth funds of the Emirate of Abu Dhabi, see the Wikipedia link directly below.

https://en.m.wikipedia.org/wiki/Mubadala\_Investment\_Company

The point here is that since the FCC has gutted the “Cross Ownership” and “Dual Network Ownership” rules, ownership of our mainstream media has changed dramatically, and we can no longer assume that our local newspapers are locally owned and controlled, which can impact a news outlets agenda.