CA22 Randy Villegas is an educator, activist, and proud son of immigrants. Raised in a working-class family in Kern, California, Randy knows firsthand the challenges that many Central Valley families face.

His journey - from earning a PhD to teaching and organizing for change - has been rooted in one core belief: our government should work for everyone, not just the powerful few.

Randy was sworn in and appointed to be a trustee for the Visalia Unified Board of Education. He was then elected to his seat becoming both the only Democrat and only Latino on the school board.

With deep ties to his community and a lifelong commitment to justice and equity, Randy is running for Congress in California's 22nd District to bring bold, compassionate leadership to Washington.
