INTRO, MANUEL PASTOR September 10 Making Waves – Torie Osborn

Manuel Pastor is an LA treasure, and one of my favorite people on the planet. He's an expert on things that matter a lot to all of us: immigration, racial justice, economic equity, demographics, social movements.....

Maybe you've read one of his more than 10 books, and marveled at his thesis that ECONOMIC GROWTH and ECONOMIC EQUITY do NOT conflict....

OR, maybe you've attended one of his institute's annual kickass IMMIGRATION conferences -- OR maybe you've even seen him emcee one or another of LA's big galas – and found him hilarious and memorable -- He likes to say that he was a talk show host in another lifetime!.....

Manuel's academic credentials are topnotch: a PhD in Economics, he's a prolific action-researcher, and recipient of too many hotshot fellowships to mention....AND, his title is DISTINGUISHED Professor of Sociology and American Studies at USC, where he directs the Equity Institute.

But he's also a brilliant storyteller who carries LA's progressive narrative. He's known for his paradoxical and famous words to us on the left after the 1992 Civil Unrest: QUOTE "We have an immediate need to think and act long-term." The subsequent proliferation of new and expanded community-organizing groups that dug in for the long haul in south and east LA have transformed political power here permanently, and put JUSTICE on LA's agenda for good.

Manuel has also explained our state's transition from red to very blue in his book: STATE OF RESISTANCE: What California's Dizzying Descent and Remarkable Resurgence Mean for America's Future.

Today, we'll hear from him on SOLIDARITY ECONOMICS.... Now, be aware that he has a condition known as SPASMODIC DYSPHORIA – a vocal disability – Please welcome my wise and funny good friend --MANUEL PASTOR
