

JEFFREY L. ALITZ, ESQ.
Mediator, Arbitrator, Case Evaluator

Jeffrey Alitz is a partner in the Boston office of the national law firm Freeman, Mathis & Gary, LLP. He also serves on the firm's executive committee and is practice group leader of its construction & design law national practice section. His practice includes construction and design law, professional liability/errors & omissions, architects and engineers, cyber liability and tech E&O, miscellaneous professional liability, and real estate agents/brokers.

Mr. Alitz possesses extensive mediation and arbitration experience, particularly concerning construction and real estate disputes. The construction disputes he has mediated and arbitrated run the gamut from property line and ownership disputes to claims concerning the Boston Harbor Cleanup, The Central Artery/Tunnel Project (a/k/a The Big Dig), municipal water and wastewater treatment facilities, public schools and colleges throughout New England, professional sports stadiums, and Boston area high-end condominium and hotel projects.

Previously, Mr. Alitz was involved as counsel for the following successfully-resolved matters: The arbitration and eventual follow-on litigation of a dispute concerning the layout, design and construction of a phase of the Gillette Stadium complex; the arbitration of disputes arising out of the design and construction of the 657,000 square foot Home Depot Distribution Facility in western Massachusetts (so large its designers had to account for the curvature of the earth in planning its structural elements); the mediation of a dispute concerning the design and construction of a hotel in the Seaport, Boston; for the mediation of conflicts concerning the redesign and renovation of the Lenox Hotel, Boston; the seven-day mediation of claims arising from the design and construction of a Cambridge powerplant; for the mediation of claims resulting from the construction and operation of wastewater facilities in Hooksett and Winchester, New Hampshire, and others throughout New England; and, the mediation of cases in Massachusetts concerning the development and construction of multi-unit residential projects and condominium projects throughout the state.

Mr. Alitz's construction and design practice consists of representing business corporations of all types, including general contractors, subcontractors, owners, developers, suppliers and sureties. He often is called upon to review construction contracts, policies and procedures, and develop preventative strategies to reduce the likelihood of litigation. He also handles construction defect cases and tort claims arising out of construction site accidents. In 2013–2019, Mr. Alitz was recognized as a Massachusetts Super Lawyer by Law & Politics magazine in the areas of construction litigation and professional liability defense.

In 2012-2019 and 2023-2026, Mr. Alitz was selected for inclusion in The Best Lawyers in America® in the fields of commercial litigation, construction law and construction litigation. In 2021, he was recognized by Best Lawyers in America in the fields of commercial litigation, construction law and construction litigation. In 2013-2019 and 2022-2025, he was recognized as a Massachusetts Super Lawyer by Law & Politics magazine in the areas of construction litigation, and professional liability: defense. Mr. Alitz is a member of the MBA, New Hampshire Bar Association and Defense Research Institute, and an honorary member of the New Hampshire Chapter American Institute of Architects. Mr. Alitz received his J.D. from Boston University School of Law and his B.A. from the University of Vermont.