

WAYZATA together

SEPTEMBER 2021

Wayzata Together aims to do just that, bring Wayzata together by showcasing our community with thoughtful content, local photography and sharing Wayzata's history, honoring the past and focusing on our bright future

Wayzata is my hometown. I grew up here, walking to Widsten Elementary School Kindergarten through 6th Grade. Widsten is where I initially met my wife. I have so many memories growing up – J.J. Hill Days, the 4th of July bike parade along Broadway Avenue, skating at Klapprich Park, and spending countless summer days at Wayzata Beach. My grandmother came to Wayzata in the 1930s. My grandfather was coaxed away from the Iron Range to become the first manager of the Wayzata's new municipal liquor store in 1947. My great uncle was the commander of the Wayzata Legion. It's an honor to be the publisher of Wayzata Together. Wayzata is my hometown and as a current resident, living here with my wife, daughter, dog and cat, I'm thrilled to share this wonderful community with you.

FROM THE EDITOR

JJ Hill Days is back after the COVID cancellation last year.

There is nothing more Wayzata than JJ Hill Days.

It has a special meaning to those who grew up here.

Wayzata Together's design team, Marly McPhail and Ann Rief, are not only uber talented, they also have Wayzata roots.

They grew up here and they have a special attachment to Wayzata the way I do.

They remember JJ Hill Days as a kid and how special it was and continues to be.

It's clear through their work in each magazine that the Dynamic Duo (as I like to refer to them) truly put their heart into it.

This is their hometown too and it shows.

JJ Hill Days is back! We hope you enjoy this year's Wayzata's annual celebration

This is the latest fishing information for Lake Minnetonka: (as of 8/20/21)

Most of the anglers you see on Lake Minnetonka are hunting for bass. They are having the most luck along the weedlines. You'll find panfish suspended 10-20 feet down. Walleyes are biting in about 10 feet of water.

NEIGHBORHOOD SPOTLIGHT:
GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY Terry Middlekauff

WAYZATA HISTORICAL DEPOT

OPEN TO THE PUBLIC 12-4 P.M. WEDNESDAYS, SATURDAYS, SUNDAYS, AND HOLIDAYS.

Wayzata's Great Northern Railway Depot has plenty of stories to tell. Those stories began when it was built in 1906.

And there is no better person to tell its stories than Terry Middlekauff.

Middlekauff serves as the station manager and his happy to bring history alive for the countless families who visit the historic building.

"I say the second hardest thing parents have to do is get their kids to come in here," said Middlekauff. "The hardest thing they have to do is get them to leave."

Middlekauff grew up in Peru, Indiana, a railroad town with a population of 12,000 or so.

"There were three railroads that ran through town and my father and both of my grandfathers worked on the railroad," said Middlekauff.

And as the trains moved from town to town, so did the Middlekauffs.

"My father was bidding on different jobs on the railroad," said Middlekauff. "We moved all the time. I went to five different grade schools."

After graduating from high school, it was off to college. "I went to college in Michigan at General Motors Institute which was an accredited college," said Middlekauff. "When I graduated, I worked for a division of General Motors in Kokomo, Indiana which is about 25 miles south of Peru."

Middlekauff moved west in the mid-1960s when he took a job with Control Data in the Twin Cities.

"They made super computers at the time," said Middlekauff. "It would fill an office. Today's smart phone is probably hundreds of times more powerful than those super computers back then."

Middlekauff became the national sales manager for Control Data and in the mid-1980s he went into consulting.

And as we master the bells and whistles of the latest electronic devices today, Middlekauff was teaching folks how to use personal computers some 40 years ago.

"I taught them (employees) how to use the computer. I taught at Honeywell, 3M, Bell Telephone, a number of companies around the Twin Cities."

While his career introduced him to the latest in technology, his heart was still with the railroad. I guess you could say it was in his blood.

"When I moved to Minnetonka, I'd come over here (Wayzata) and take pictures with my camera of the trains," said Middlekauff. "At the time, the Depot was closed to the public."

Middlekauff worked with the Wayzata Historical Society to open the Depot to the public. That was more than 20 years ago.

"It was amazing how good a shape it was in. Most of the time when the railroad would close a depot, like they did this one (in the early 1970s), they would take all the equipment, all the furniture and scrap it," said Middlekauff. "Here it's like they turned out the lights and locked the door."

The benches, telegraph, telephone and safe are all originals. Folks have donated collectibles through the years that are on display at the Depot.

"Most of the museums are look, but don't touch." Not so at the Wayzata Depot.

Among the numerous fascinating artifacts within the building is one that showcases how far we have come in the area of communication.

Before a train conductor had a radio to communicate, a very simple but effective device was used to keep the crew in the loop.

If the depot had a message for them, a yellow light indicated they needed to slow down and pick up the message – a simple paper note.

"They would put the note in a stand on the platform and train workers would slow the train down and pick up the message on the fly."

This is just one example of the many tidbits of information that Middlekauff is happy to provide.

He was born and raised in a railroad family in Indiana and continues that legacy in a small building, in a small town along the shores of Lake Minnetonka.

RAIL MEETS WATER

Aaron J. Person and Joanie Holst
Wayzata Historical Society

James J. Hill Days has been celebrated in Wayzata since 1975. Who was James J. Hill and what was his connection to Wayzata? James J. Hill was a railroad magnate with an “empire” stretching from Minnesota to the Pacific Northwest. The train tracks through Wayzata became part of his mainline between Saint Paul and Seattle when the final western sections were completed in 1893. However, many would be surprised to learn that James J. Hill didn’t actually build the tracks in Wayzata – that came much earlier.

August 24, 1867 is an important date in Wayzata and Lake Minnetonka history. On that day, the Saint Paul & Pacific Railroad reached Wayzata and connected all of Lake Minnetonka to the Twin Cities. Led by the Saint Cloud #7 steam locomotive, the train consisted of one passenger car. Townspeople and “friends” from other parts of the lake lined up to greet the train as it chugged up to the shores of Wayzata Bay. It was also greeted by a small sidewheeler called the Lady of the Lake (previously called the Governor Ramsey), the first steamboat on Lake Minnetonka. The train entered town from the east and was able to proceed to the middle of town, approximately where Lake Street and Walker Avenue intersect today. Enjoying a photo opportunity, the crowd gathered around the locomotive and celebrated what they hoped would be the start of new economic activities in various communities around the lake. Later that day, the train was turned around on a horse-drawn turntable and headed back to the city.

After the railroad established itself, the first train station in Wayzata was built near the present-day intersection of Lake Street and Broadway Avenue. From here, passengers from the Twin Cities and indeed all over the United States transferred onto steamboats that were waiting for them at the adjacent docks. After departing Wayzata, the steamboats would take them to hotels, inns, and boarding houses all around the lake and to communities such as Excelsior and Mound. On the flipside, the railroad also allowed farmers who lived in the area to easily send produce to big markets in the city.

However, by 1873 the Saint Paul & Pacific was suffering financially and went into receivership. This is when James J. Hill came into the picture. Hill purchased the railroad in 1878 and renamed it the Saint Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway. When a legal battle between Hill and the village of Wayzata arose over the location of the tracks in 1883, the train station at the foot of Broadway Avenue was demolished and a new one was built east of town near Bushaway Road. The “feud” between Wayzata and James J. Hill finally ended in 1906 when Hill commissioned the construction of a new depot near the intersection of Lake Street and Barry Avenue. Declared to be the “handsomest” depot on the entire line, it still stands today as an iconic reminder of Wayzata’s railway heritage.

“Welcome to the comeback year for James J Hill Days!

The Wayzata Chamber is back in action bringing in your favorite attractions, including the Lake Minnetonka Carnival, Rails & Ales Craft Beer Festival, live music, street market, log rolling, parade, fireworks and more.

Lake Street brings a twist to the event and layout with Panoway as the backdrop. In addition to the street filled with activities, you will see dachshunds stretching their race legs in the JJHD Dog Park, enjoy more seating along the street and of course the new splash pad will be a first at the event.

This weekend also marks the 20th anniversary of the tragic events of 9/11 and Saturday morning will offer a special time and place to remember those lives lost and those who served. A memorial event will be held in the Birch Grove in the Panoway Plaza Park.

The Wayzata Bay Fireworks Show will be kicked off with a patriotic parachute jump and landing on Lake Street! We are very grateful for a community who loves their fireworks and put together a community fundraising campaign through the Wayzata Community Foundation.

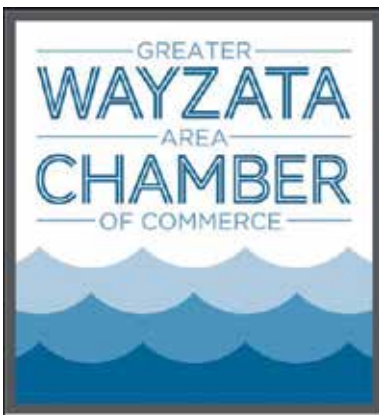

The Wayzata Beach Bash will return after a two-year break, on Friday and Saturday to Wayzata Beach with ZZ Top and Brantley Gilbert! Tickets are still available.

We are a small and mighty team at the Chamber, but “it takes a village” as they say and we love to have you join the volunteer team! For more information, to volunteer, donate, or to purchase tickets, go to jameshilldays.com.

This community event is truly a celebration of Wayzata’s history and is made possible by our members, volunteers, and sponsors including our presenting sponsor Morrie’s Auto Group, all who provide the engine behind this train. We are grateful for the support of the businesses and residents who call this home and have celebrated with us for 46 years!

Welcome and have a fun and safe weekend with us, see you on the street!

EAT MEAT FREE

By Dr. Barbro Brost, D.C.
The Brost Clinic

It's a quickly growing trend, especially among young people to change to a meat free diet. It is projected that in just a few years, 1/3 of people under 35 will have switched to eating meat free. There are many reasons for this, ranging from animal rights to being more mindful of our resources like land and water, to significant health benefits.

A meat free diet can be just that, still eating chicken and fish. A vegetarian diet- eating vegetables, fruit, grains and nuts. Lacto-ovo vegetarians also eat dairy products and eggs. Vegans eat strictly plants.

The protein supplied by animal products in a regular diet need to be replaced with vegetable proteins from nuts, grains and beans. Today there is also a fast-growing development of vegetable protein products such as Beyond Meat and Impossible Food products. Have you had a burger at Stalk & Spade in Wayzata yet?

There are clear health benefits from eating a vegetarian diet especially a vegan diet. Weight loss, lower blood pressure and cholesterol, decreased inflammation and a calmer disposition are a few of the health benefits. There are plenty of resources available on the internet for anyone wanting to make the change to a plant-based diet. Give it a try- you might like it!
