WELCOME

On behalf of the National Association of Private Special Education Centers (NAPSEC), it is with great pleasure that I welcome you to the NAPSEC Leadership Conference in beautiful San Diego, California! This year's conference brings together leaders from across the country who are committed to advancing services and support for individuals with disabilities—from early intervention through adulthood. As executive leaders, administrators and professionals who operate schools and programs dedicated to special education, your presence here affirms your dedication to excellence and innovation in our field.

Over the course of the conference, you'll have the opportunity to engage with thought leaders and colleagues through keynote presentations, dynamic breakout sessions, and valuable networking opportunities. Our program is designed to address the critical areas that impact our work every day; leadership, legal compliance, fiscal responsibility, and evidence-based best practices, equipping you with tools and insights that you can take back to your organizations and communities.

Whether this is your first NAPSEC conference or you are a returning participant, we are thrilled to have you with us. We encourage you to fully engage in the sessions, ask questions, share your experiences, and make meaningful connections with fellow leaders who share your passion and purpose.

A special note of thanks to the conference planning committee, and NAPSEC's CEO and Executive Director, Danielle Damm, for their significant role and contributions in planning this conference.

Thank you for being here! I look forward to a productive, inspiring, and energizing time together in San Diego.

Kathy Flannery

My Struggle Is My Strength - I'm Just a Kid with an IEP

Jordan Toma

Sponsored by Sheppard Pratt

Welcome to The Jordan Toma Experience! Jordan Toma is a top motivational speaker in the country because he teaches by example, his example. Diagnosed with ADHD, dyslexia and dysgraphia, Jordan struggled in elementary school through high school missing countless days of school and never passing a test on his own. Despite those difficulties, Jordan turned things around during a "Step Ahead" (pre-college) program and graduated from Centenary University with a 3.3 GPA and a degree in psychology. Three years later, Jordan spoke with students in the same pre-college program he attended after 12th grade. Jordan's first job was selling windows door-to-door and he became the number one window salesman in the country. Why? "Everyone else was walking; I was running." Today, Jordan is a successful businessman, a top insurance agent, and investment advisor with a multimillion-dollar real estate portfolio who speaks in schools and at corporate events across the country. Jordan will explain how to find strength through struggles and how important it is for leaders in education to help their students and teams believe in themselves.

Leadership is the Strategy

Jenny Livelli

Sponsored by Phillips Programs

Directors and administrators in special education programs often face high staff turnover and burnout. Building strong leaders helps fix those problems. Good leadership supports teachers, improves the school climate, and leads to better outcomes for students. This session gives leaders a plan they can use to grow talent from within their own teams. It is made for leaders who want to build a stronger staff and improve the future of their programs. When staff feel supported and know how to lead, they are more likely to stay. They also do better work. Jenny Livelli, CEO of The Children's Guild, will share how her team created leadership programs for people at all levels. She will explain how they use coaching, feedback, and planning to help staff grow.

Interprofessional Collaboration to Support Individuals with Profound Autism: Examples of Successes and Recommendations for Practitioners

Willow Hozella, Morgan Levy, Rachel Flaherty

The complex needs of individuals with profound autism often require support from multiple clinical disciplines (Matson & Burns, 2019). While disciplines often deliver services independently, better outcomes may be achieved when disciplines work collaboratively, with each specialty sharing and receiving expertise and guidance from the other (Bowman, et al., 2021; LaFrance et al., 2019). A recent survey found that while individuals from different disciplines strongly desire to work together, they report that their experiences have been less than satisfactory (Bowman, et al., 2024). This presentation will focus on examples of successful collaboration between speech-language pathology, occupational therapy, and behavior analysis. The panel will describe successful collaboration and specific interpersonal and interprofessional strategies that facilitated effective collaboration, and how to overcome some of its known barriers.

The Nonprofit Board & CEO/ED Relationship: How to Make it Work Well

Ken Berger & Jyothish Daniel

Sponsored by Spectrum360

The workshop explores the complex relationship between nonprofit boards — composed of volunteers with limited time and backgrounds — and the full-time CEO/ED who manages day-to-day operations. It examines how boards can exercise oversight without overreaching into management, how executives can provide sufficient but not overwhelming information, and how to foster open dialogue that allows for healthy disagreement. The session will also discuss how the dynamic changes during crises and will feature the CEO/ED and a board trustee from Spectrum360 sharing candid examples and actionable recommendations for building a strong, collaborative board–executive partnership built on trust and mutual respect.

Hot-Button Legal Issues Affecting Private Special Education Schools

David B. Rubin, Esq.

Private special education programs are governed by a complex web of federal and state laws and regulations. In this litigious environment, it is essential for school leaders to recognize potential legal issues before they blossom into full-blown crises. This session will review developments in the law over the past year of interest to the private school community and offer tips on how to minimize risk and avoid liability.

Discover Calm & Connection in 30 Minutes

Dr. Danielle Taylor

Step into a restorative 30-minute journey where you'll practice multisensory strategies—gentle movement, breathwork, meditation, and sound bathing—that invite calm, connection, and clarity. Together, we'll explore how the nervous system shapes our emotions, stress responses, and ability to connect with others.

Through this experiential session, you will:

- Discover how fight/flight, freeze, and social engagement states show up in the body and lived experience.
- Connect with the felt sense of emotions and stress in safe, guided ways.
- Release stored stress responses while cultivating presence and regulation.

By the end, you'll leave with tools to better regulate your own nervous system—so you can show up with more balance, resilience, and availability to co-regulate with students and colleagues, creating safer and more supportive learning environments.

Pass or Fail? The AI Vibe Check for Education Leaders

Rebecca Bultsma

Sponsored by Kennedy Krieger School Programs

What if AI could be your secret weapon instead of your biggest headache?

Most special education leaders are stuck debating whether AI is safe to try, while some programs are already using it to revolutionize compliance documentation and individualized planning. The difference? They know how to make confident decisions about what's worth their time. Practical AI strategist and AI ethics researcher Rebecca Bultsma brings you the cutting-edge intel that'll change how you think about leading in the age of artificial intelligence. Through compelling examples of what's working (and honest talk about what's not), you'll see how thoughtful AI adoption can amplify your impact and free up your team for what matters most. You'll learn a simple decision-making V.I.B.E. check framework that works whether you're an AI skeptic or a ChatGPT convert. We'll tackle the real risks — bias, data protection, that pesky tendency to make stuff up — not because you should be afraid, but because understanding the landscape lets you navigate it boldly. Walk out energized and ready to lead your organization into the future with confidence — because the AI revolution is happening with or without you, and you're exactly the leader your community needs to guide it wisely.

The AI Vibe Check in Action: From Policy to Practice

Rebecca Bultsma

Time to get hands-on with the tools that can actually solve your daily headaches.

Bring your laptop and real challenges — streamlining compliance documentation, supporting overwhelmed staff, making sense of complex legislation, improving parent communication — and let's find AI solutions that actually work. In this interactive workshop, we'll test-drive vetted tools together, working through scenarios from your own programs. You'll collaborate with fellow administrators to tackle practical questions: Which AI tools can safely handle your most time-consuming tasks? How do you train staff without creating chaos? What's worth your limited time and budget? We'll put tools through the V.I.B.E. test with real examples and see what passes. You'll leave with a curated toolkit of tested solutions, simple guidelines for staff adoption, and confidence in what to try first when you get back. Plus, you'll know exactly which tools to skip and why — because not every shiny new AI thing is worth your attention.

Take Action: Turning Adversity Into Accomplishments

Michael Bonner

Sponsored by Kennedy Krieger School Programs

In this transformative keynote, Michael Bonner explores the power of one decision and how it compounds over time to create lasting success. From literacy and AI to emotional intelligence and culture, he unpacks the systems and mindset shifts that drive real change. Through powerful examples—from the Wright brothers to personal moments of resilience—Michael challenges audiences to update their systems, embrace discomfort, and take action toward a better future. Whether in education, leadership, or personal growth, this speech will equip you with the strategies to turn adversity into accomplishments and redefine what's possible.

Extreme Makeover: School Edition

Michael Farrelly and Tracy Lee

Want to build a new school culture but do not know where to start? Thinking of remodeling your approach towards instruction and skill development? Tired of wasting countless, sleepless evenings wondering how to begin or who can assist with fixing the problem? Well, we have some solutions for you! Investing the time and resources to assess special education programs and services that result in positive culture change and innovative initiatives can seem daunting for some and invigorating for others. Nonetheless, it is essential for school leaders to systemically review program effectiveness to ensure that approaches and practices of the past do not go stale and lead to lack of student progress or employee burnout. As current research evolves so must our mindset towards organizational outcomes. Presenters will share a detailed process used to further fulfill our organization's mission with impactful practices across special education and related service disciplines. Using AI in Education: Embracing Change and Overcoming Fear

Liz Wohlberg

This presentation invites school and clinical leaders to explore how artificial intelligence can be thoughtfully integrated into special education to reduce burnout, streamline documentation, and improve collaboration. Using relevant examples, ethical guidance, and live demonstrations of tools like Microsoft CoPilot, MagicSchool.ai, and Otter.ai, we'll show how AI can support, rather than replace, the work of educators, administrators, and related service providers. Attendees will leave with a clearer understanding of AI's role in special education and practical strategies for responsible, informed implementation tailored to their programs or practice.

Educator of the Year

Kelli Johnson, ScenicView Academy

Kelli Johnson is the Dean of Education at ScenicView Academy and has been a long time extraordinary teacher with over two decades of experience. Her instructional leadership, innovation, and unwavering commitment to students with special needs have transformed the teaching practices and educational outcomes at ScenicView Academy. Kelli is known for her professional warmth and her exceptional depth of knowledge in teaching strategies and instructional design. She is widely respected for her ability to individualize instruction, making complex concepts accessible through concrete tools, visual supports, and data-informed strategies.

Her classroom expertise is matched by her strength as a mentor: she regularly observes teachers, provides thoughtful and actionable feedback, and encourages continuous improvement—even when lessons are already strong. Under her guidance, educators grow more confident, reflective, and effective. Kelli's impact extends well beyond the classroom.

She has strengthened partnerships with universities to expand services and instructional opportunities, bringing additional resources and expertise to students who might not otherwise have access. These include ongoing research projects that benefit our students, such as AI-assisted social media supports, and innovative services such as Occupational Therapy that can enrich and enhance their time at ScenicView and their skills when they graduate. As Dean of Education, Kelli has played a pivotal role in unifying our academic programs into a cohesive, evidence-based Academy focused on meaningful skill development and student growth, and we are grateful every day that she chose to leave the public school system to come and work for an experimental program trying to pioneer learning for neurodivergent adults.

Approachable, curious, dependable, brilliant, and deeply invested in both staff and students, Kelli exemplifies the very best of educational leadership—combining expertise, innovation, and heart to help learners and educators alike reach their full potential.

Related Service Provider of the Year

Deb Hamilton, ScenicView Academy

Deb Hamilton is one of those staff that students and their parents fall in love with and greatly appreciate because of her exceptional services delivered in such a warm and caring manner. Deb is a Nationally Certified School Nurse whose clinical excellence, innovation, and compassion have profoundly strengthened the health, independence, and well-being of hundreds of neurodivergent young adults at ScenicView Academy. As an RN with over 30 years of professional experience in a wide variety of settings, Deb brings deep medical expertise paired with an extraordinary ability to teach students how to understand, manage, and advocate for their own health. More than this, however, Deb is an invaluable part of the ScenicView team, whose warmth and wisdom enhances the lives of everyone who interacts with her. Deb is known for adapting her interventions in real time to meet students' individual needs. She continually evaluates and refines her practice, researches emerging medical interventions, and applies evidence-based strategies to ensure students receive the highest quality care.

She incorporates incentive programs, individualized teaching, and animal-assisted care by bringing her therapy dog, Gizmo, to campus weekly. This approach reduces anxiety, builds rapport, and creates a welcoming space where students feel comfortable seeking care and asking questions. Students who once avoided medical appointments now engage confidently and consistently because of Deb's approach.

Deb's impact reaches far beyond the nurse's office. She collaborates closely with students, families, educators, residential staff, and medical providers, ensuring continuity of care across settings. She attends frequent team meetings, shares insights proactively, and provides calm, trusted guidance in both routine and urgent situations—even outside scheduled hours.

Deb has partnered with foundations, community organizations and local universities to help students access essential services including a dental clinic at ScenicView, and epi-pen resources and trainings. In all she does, her genuine love for others has shaped a culture of trust and empowerment. Deb exemplifies the very best of related services—combining skill, innovation, and heart to help students stay healthy, grow confident, and prepare for independent living.

Direct Care Worker of the Year

Caitlin White, ScenicView Academy

Caitlin White is an art instructor and mentor at ScenicView Academy. Teaching students to express themselves through art is the medium through which Caitlin has influenced many individuals. Caitlin's boundless creativity, compassion, and commitment have had a profound impact on autistic and neurodivergent young adults at ScenicView Academy over her eight years of service. Through innovative, person-centered instruction, she creates empowering experiences for our students that foster confidence, self-expression, and personal growth.

As an art instructor and mentor, Caitlin teaches across a wide range of creative disciplines, including painting, mixed media, digital art, creative writing, and musical theater. She continually expands her skills to better meet students' individual needs and sensory profiles. Her Hero's Journey class is a standout innovation, using art as a tool for self-exploration and helping students see themselves as capable, resilient, and growing toward independence as the sole author of their life's story.

Caitlin's exceptional care is evident in her patient, calm, and strengths-based approach. She allows students to move at their own pace while offering consistent encouragement and genuine praise. Students who struggle to engage elsewhere reliably show up and thrive in her classes, where they feel safe, valued, and understood. She frequently goes above and beyond—using her own time and talents to support student performances, celebrations, and confidence-building moments.

Beyond her classroom, Caitlin is a trusted and generous teammate who strengthens the entire school community. She collaborates closely with therapists and staff, supports major events and fundraisers, and is known for stepping in during high-pressure moments with creativity and grace. Her professionalism, teamwork, and kindness make her a role model for colleagues and a cornerstone of ScenicView's culture.

Caitlin exemplifies the very best of direct care—combining skill, compassion, and dedication to help students and her school community thrive.

This award was generously sponsored by The Family Foundation.

NCASES

National Commission for the Accreditation of Special Education Services

"The NCASES accreditation process provides an opportunity for program review by colleagues who are leaders in the field of special education. Their perspectives, affirmations, and considerations provide essential feedback promoting integrity and growth."

Patrick Seay, Assistant Vice President School ACT Operations
Kennedy Krieger School Programs

"This rigorous process drives excellence, ensuring agencies provide top-tier services and support to those they serve, ultimately leading to better outcomes and stronger trust amongst all stakeholders."

Ray Damm, Chief Executive Officer
ACCEL & ACCEL International

"NCASES has helped us to achieve and maintain high standards of quality with both our operations and the services we offer."

Marty Matheson, Executive Director
ScenicView Academy

WHAT SETS NCASES APART?

- Created by Special Educators for Special Educators
- A comprehensive self-study process evaluating 52 national standards
- An on-site peer review led by trained professionals who understand your work
- An approach that supports program uniqueness while ensuring excellence and adherence to established national best practices
- Recognized by the U.S. Department of Homeland Security & Student and Exchange Visitor Program (SEVP) as an approved accrediting agency for elementary and secondary schools

ABOUT US

- Established in 1992 by the National Association of Private Special Education Centers
- Overseen by a Board of Directors and managed by a volunteer Commission composed of experts in the field

Our mission is to ensure special education programs and services maintain excellence through demonstrable adherence to a set of established national standards

WHY CHOOSE NCASES?

Stand out as a leader in special education. NCASES accreditation is a prestigious mark of quality, awarded through a rigorous peer review process specifically tailored for special education and adult learning programs. It provides:

- National recognition for excellence in special education services
- Validated adherence to best practices and professional standards
- Increased credibility with families, funders, and referral sources
- A structured path to continuous improvement and strategic growth

AUTHENTICITY OF PRACTICE

Seeing your program in action allows reviewers to validate what has been reported in your self-study is being implemented with fidelity and impact.

HOLISTIC EVALUATION

A site visit captures the full environment: classroom interactions, staff engagement, facilities, student support systems, and organizational culture - elements that can't be fully conveyed through documentation alone.

PEER-TO-PEER INSIGHT

Conducted by experienced professionals in special education, the review fosters meaningful dialogue, expert feedback, and the sharing of best practices tailored to your specific setting.

SUPPORT FOR GROWTH & IMPROVEMENT

Beyond compliance, site reviewers often identify opportunities for improvement and innovation, helping programs refine their practices and achieve even greater impact.

CONFERENCE SPEAKERS

Jordan Toma

Jordan Toma is a top motivational speaker in the country because he teaches by example, his example. Diagnosed with ADHD, dyslexia and dysgraphia, Jordan struggled in elementary school through high school missing countless days of school and never passing a test on his own. Despite those difficulties, Jordan turned things around during a "Step Ahead" (pre-college) program and graduated from Centenary University with a 3.3 GPA and a degree in psychology. Three years later, Jordan spoke with students in the same pre-college program he attended after 12th grade. Jordan's first job was selling windows door-to-door and he became the number one window salesman in the country. Why? "Everyone else was walking; I was running." Today, Jordan is a successful businessman, a top insurance agent, and investment advisor with a multimillion-dollar real estate portfolio who speaks in schools and at corporate events across the country.

Rebecca Bultsma

Rebecca Bultsma is an internationally renowned keynote speaker and trainer who has worked with thousands of educators and leaders across Canada and the U.S. to build confidence and capacity for integrating AI in K-12 schools. Known for making AI approachable, practical, and people-centered, Rebecca helps educators harness AI to transform teaching, learning, and leadership while keeping relationships, equity, and ethics at the forefront. Rebecca partners with schools, districts, nonprofits, and businesses to advance AI literacy, develop responsible AI policies, and ensure ethical AI adoption that benefits students and communities. She serves as the Chief Innovation Officer of Amplify & Elevate Innovation and co-hosts AmpED to 11 Podcast, a podcast exploring how AI and innovation are reshaping education and the future of learning. Rebecca also contributes to Canada's Digital Governance Standards Institute and is advancing her research in Artificial Intelligence Ethics at the University of Edinburgh.
