

Evidence that Demands a Verdict

by Josh McDowell

The late Dr. Bill Bright, of Campus Crusade for Christ, raised the question, “Is Christianity credible? Is there any historical evidence or intellectual basis for faith in Jesus Christ? The Bible tells a wonderful story, but is there logical and historical reason to believe it is really true? The book Evidence that Demands a Verdict by Josh McDowell, originally published in 1972 by Campus Crusade boldly proclaims that there IS such evidence and provides an excellent summary of that evidence. I remember saying about this book when I first heard about it in the early 1970s, “I really needed this book when I was in college! I would have given $500 to have had it a few years ago!” Well, I’m happy to say that you can probably get a an updated version of this book today for a very nominal fee, especially since, as I understand, McDowell accepts no royalty on his book sales, but instead donates all proceeds to the Campus Crusade for Christ! Josh McDowell is definitely my favorite apologetics author! If you don't have a copy of this book, you REALLY need to get one!!
