Treasure Wellness Counseling and Training Center

Treasure Wellness Counseling and Training Center (TWCTC) serves as a training site for graduate students in marriage and family counseling/therapy, mental health counseling, and clinical counseling. These trainees practice under close supervision of the Clinical Supervision team.

We have a multitude of interns from local and online universities at any one time. Interns are graduate students in the final stages of preparation for a Masters Degree in the counseling field. Interns are supervised by our Clinical Supervisors as well as faculty from their respective university. Participating universities include but are not limited to: Northwest Nazarene University, Idaho State University, Boise State University, Capella University, Liberty University, NorthCentral University, and University of the Cumberlands.

TWCTC will work to assist students in development and refinement of clinical and professional skills necessary to function as a competent and ethical entry level counselor. We will assist students in integrating the knowledge of "self" with the professional identity in order to become an effective instrument of change. We will work to increase the student's awareness and appreciation of individual and group differences, as well as to develop sensitivity to issues of culture, age, gender, religion, and other areas of human diversity.

TWCTC interns have the opportunity to provide counseling to individuals, couples, families, and groups from a variety of backgrounds and cultures. Interns will have their own case load as well as opportunity to observe and participate with counseling professionals from a variety of theoretical orientations. Interns will be exposed to a minimum of three separate clinical supervisors with varying theoretical approaches.

TWCTC primary objectives are to educate, prepare, and empower students from all specialties who wish to embark in a career of private practice post-graduation and licensure. Our training program has a clearly defined curriculum for each developmental level as they move from practicum through internship. Interns who successfully complete the TWCTC internship program will leave with the knowledge, confidence, and ability to immediately begin practice as a private practitioner. All graduates from our TWCTC program will have their 1000 hours as required by Idaho state law and can apply for Idaho licensure upon completion. Meeting Idaho licensure requirements is a TWCTC standard for program participants. [Note: Some universities have different hour requirements for graduation or completion of programs.]

TWCTC's 16-month program is divided into four sections: Practicum, Internship I, Internship II, Internship III. Common tasks will be similar across all sections. Clinical supervisors may be changed section to section. During the course of the program each intern will have a minimum of two clinical supervision experiences.
