

The Glendale Woman's Club played an important part in the social and cultural development in Glendale. Started in 1901 as a "Self Culture Club", the primary aim of the Woman's Club was self-improvement from a literary standpoint. Glendale was primarily a farming community until 1907 when industry came with the opening of the sugar beet factory. This provided employment to new settlers, and as the town grew, so did the Self Culture Club. By 1907, membership had increased to fifty members and it became impossible to continue meeting in homes, so the group began to think of acquiring a place of their own. The first private donation was $5.00, prize money won by a member at the state fair for the best cake baked with sugar from the sugar beet factory. $5 shares of stock were sold and by 1912, the money was raised to build one of the first Woman's Club clubhouses in Arizona. In 1989, the clubhouse building was placed on the National Register of Historic Places.

We are a proud member of the

What is the General Federation of Women's Clubs (GFWC)?

With nearly 80,000 members in affiliated clubs in every state, the District of Columbia, and more than a dozen countries, GFWC members work in their own communities to support the arts, preserve natural resources, advance education, promote healthy lifestyles, encourage civic involvement, and work toward world peace and understanding.

GFWC clubs and clubwomen are the heart of not only the Federation, but the communities in which they live and work.

By Living the Volunteer Spirit, GFWC clubwomen transform lives each day, not simply with monetary donations, but with hands-on tangible projects that provide immediate impact. With a grassroots approach that often thinks locally but impacts globally, GFWC, its clubs and members remain committed to serving as a force for global good, as it has done since its formation in 1890.
