COURSE OBJECTIVES

The objective of this educational course is to educate the user on how to handle ethical challenges. Ethics provide a set of standards for behavior that guides us on how to act in different situations. While you are applying ethical standards to the organization, it means applying moral standards, and there are a few considerations that you must look out for when you're handling ethical challenges. This course will familiarize you with the ethical considerations that are not just a good business decision but are mandated by law. This course will help you to analyze ways of handling conflict of interests and advise you on how to handle incidents of corruption at the workplace.
