A black and white photograph of a white ceramic swan figurine. The swan is positioned in profile, facing right, with its long neck elegantly curved. Its body is integrated into a large, ornate base that resembles a stylized, multi-layered shell or a series of overlapping, pointed scales. The entire piece is set against a dark, textured background.

A white ceramic sculpture of a swan, shown in profile, resting on a dark surface. The swan is depicted with its head turned back, looking over its shoulder. The feathers are intricately detailed with a textured, layered appearance. The background is dark and textured, possibly a wall or backdrop.

A white ceramic bird figurine, possibly a sparrow or finch, with detailed feather carving. The bird is shown in profile, facing right, with its head slightly turned. The feathers are intricately carved with a pattern of small, rounded bumps. The bird has a small, pointed beak and a visible eye. The overall shape is compact and rounded, typical of a small songbird. The background is dark and plain.

A white ceramic swan figurine with a detailed, textured body and a long, curved neck, set against a dark background. The swan is shown in profile, facing left, with its neck elegantly curved. The body is covered in intricate, wavy patterns representing feathers, and the tail is slightly upturned. The overall shape is reminiscent of a traditional ceramic vessel, such as a vase or a small bowl, with the swan's form integrated into the design.
