TITLE I NEWSLETTER

GATE CITY CHARTER SCHOOL FOR THE ARTS

OCTOBER 2026

Research Shows...

THE IMPORTANCE OF READING AT HOME

The National Education Association reports several benefits of reading at home with your child. Not only does it help strengthen their overall reading and language skills, but it can also boost their confidence and strengthen your connection with your child, as it is a valuable bonding experience, especially when done regularly!

REDUCING SCREEN TIME

The National Institute of Health reports that excessive screen time can be harmful to children's language development, social-emotional growth, mental health, executive functioning, and more. Encourage and model screen-free activities whenever possible, such as reading, playing outside, crafting, playing board games, solving puzzles, and more!

Save the Date

CELEBRATION OF LEARNING

Wednesday, November 18th 5-7pm

At-Home Resources

- Find great tips about reading at home with your child here: Reading Rockets
- Create a free account with ReadWorks to access free research-based texts that support decoding and reading comprehension skills.
- This Parent Powered article provides great tips for how you can find hidden "math moments" in everyday, real-life situations to practice math at home in a meaningful way.

A Reminder...

Your involvement matters!
Dedicating even a small amount of intentional learning time at home can make the world of a difference for your child!