

The Making of a Goddess

DEVAJIT BHUYAN

A Collection of Fifty Poems on Shobha De

No other Indian female writer has created as many waves as Shobha De has. Shobha De is a woman of many parts. The epitome of femininity, wrapped in beauty and brains, she is a wife and mother of grown-up children, with many fans and some critics. She has travelled a long way....from modelling and copy-writing to editorship and then on to seasoned and mature writing, churning out instantly bestselling books. India's answer to Harold Robbins or Jackie Collins, some of her books have made their way to Universities overseas, as suggested reading.

The Making of a Goddess

Is a collection of poems written by a self-confessed ardent admirer, on the occasion of De's completing fifty years of age, and is likely the first book of poems on Shobha De to be written in the corridors of a hospital! The author Devajit Bhuyan is an Electrical Engineer, presently working in BRPL, Dhaligaon, Assam, and according to him there are many similarities between Poetry and Physics, and both are complementary, like two sides of a coin! He is a regular columnist with leading local newspapers and recently released a book on "21st Century Rhymes" which perhaps all age groups will admire.
