

THE FULL ENGLISH

Dear Agony Aunt

This is not the first time I have written to you about the father of my children. I've stood by him all these years, put up with his philandering ways and his lies. Despite all this, throughout our marriage I have always forgiven him and taken him back. What should I do this time?

Best wishes, Unhappy.

Dear "unhappy"

All of us at some time in a long marriage have felt as you do. In your much longer letter to me you say that you're not getting any younger. My advice, for what it's worth, is to cut your losses. This man is just not worth it.

Dear Agony Aunt

I have been following your column for years and have always taken its advice to heart. However, I don't feel that you're being very helpful in these circumstances. What would you do in my place? Would you stand by him after all he's done or walk away? In the past I've always taken him back for the sake of our children.

Dear Agony Aunt

I am really disappointed that you haven't replied to my last letter even though I told you that it looks like I'm going to be kicked out of our home as a result of his disgusting behaviour. PLEASE REPLY. I AM FEELING DESPERATE.

Dear "unhappy"

I really don't see how I can help you further. I have told you to leave this man but it sounds like you don't want to accept my advice. You say you are feeling desperate. I understand but I don't see what I can do. I have given you the same advice I would give to a friend or neighbour. It's up to you whether you take it or leave it.

Dear Agony Aunt

YOU ARE NOT BEING VERY HELPFUL. I NEED HELP. NOW.

Dear "unhappy"

If there is no one else you can talk to, you may find it helpful to contact the Samaritans. They are non-judgemental and any conversation you have will remain anonymous. Many of my correspondents have found them to be very helpful.

Dear Agony Aunt

I don't think you are being very understanding. Of course there is no one else to talk to, otherwise why would I be writing to you? His family have never liked me. They never made me feel welcome. And, as I have told you in the past, I never got on with his mother.

Dear "unhappy"

I am sorry you are not finding this correspondence helpful. I think it's time to bring it to an end, don't you?

Dear Agony Aunt

Thank you for suggesting I bring it to an end. I agree that I need to take the matter into my own hands for the sake of my children and our good name.
