

Bummed Out

Dear Mr Zoo Keeper,
Good day to you.
A funny thing happened
Today at your zoo.
All of your animals
Would not look my way.
They turned when they saw me
And put their bums on display.
I saw nothing but bottoms
A full range of behinds,
Big bums, little bums
Bums of all kinds.
I saw a bear's derrière
A hyena's spotted heinie,
A lemur's bushy tushy
(It was surprisingly tiny.)
A possum's white bottom
A zebra's striped bootie,
A hippo's rear end
Is not a thing of beauty.
A cheeky little monkey
Shook its red bum at me,
An elephant's giant buttocks
Are quite a sight to see!

I saw a lion dozing
Away from its pride
But all I could see
Was his furry backside.
I then caught a glimpse
Of a camel with a hump,
But it quickly turned away
And paraded its rump.
Along came a squirrel
Nibbling on a nut,
It scurried up a tree
And showed me its butt.
I was really bummed out
To see all those buns,
My day at your zoo
Was not at all fun.

Bummed out,
Seymour Butts
