

Hi! My name is John John Johnson! Isn't that the best name ever? And you know why? Because so many other people have that name. Like at least three to five other people in your general vicinity. Every time someone calls out the name "John" I turn around, and they're talking to another lucky John. I love the moment where I think I'm being addressed, only to realize I turned around for nothing and am now looking around at all of the wonderful things around me to avoid eye contact. Another great thing is when I get emails and it's to the wrong John Johnson. I love learning about another John's $20,000 dollars in credit card debt from their purchase of a tesla cybertruck. You get to also be addressed by your last name too! The full package if you will. My favorite part of grade school all the way into college was being called John John instead of just John because of all the other Johns in my class. My teacher got us all mixed up, it was soooooooooooooooooooooooooooooo funny! It's like I had no individuality, isn't that great? Just one of the many sheeple with the same name. And you know what the best part about it all is? I'm still a unique person, just like everyone else.
