

President Peres Tells Personal Story at Holocaust Memorial

Dear Friends,

This year, the Holocaust Day of Remembrance will be a special one. The October 7 massacre in Israel, the immense increase in anti-Semitic incidents in the US and around the world, and the Iran missile attack suggest that Jewish life is in danger. We always say that we need to remember the Holocaust so it will never happen again. This year, the words ‘Never again’ receive a special meaning. The massacre in Israel, with the utter brutality of the Hamas terrorists who invaded peaceful, residential homes, reminded us of the atrocities of the Nazis. The enemies of the Jewish people continue with the same hateful rhetoric.

Today, I want to share with you some of the remarks of the late President of Israel, Shimon Peres (1923-2016), who told his personal story at the central Holocaust Memorial Day ceremony at Yad Vashem. It will help us to better understand what our brothers and sisters went through during this awful chapter of human history.

“I was born in Wieszniev. Half of the townspeople came to Israel. The other half perished,” said Peres. “After the war, I learned that on Sunday, August 30th, a dark dawn had come upon my hometown. The Nazis who had seized it ordered the Jews to pack their belongings and present themselves at their doorsteps.

“The SS officers passed by, striking them and telling them to proceed towards the synagogue. One of them cried out ‘Jews, save yourselves!’ The Germans shot down those who tried to escape. The rest reached the synagogue, which was made of wood. The doors were locked. All were burned alive.

“That was the last day of Rabbi Zvi Meltzer, my grandfather, my mentor. He was consumed by fire with his Tallit on his head.

“That was the last Jewish day in Wieszniev. Not even a single Jew remained alive.”

Peres recalled his visit to Wieszniev after the war and said, “Not a Jewish mark remains. Not a house, not a synagogue, not a school, not a cemetery; only a heap of stones.

“As I stood there, the last Kol Nidrei prayer emitted by my grandfather’s sweet voice rang in my ears.

“My lips murmured the Kaddish.”

He added that Hitler chose to identify the Jews as his greatest enemy because “the moral strength of the Jews was more dangerous to him than the military menace of his neighbors.”

“The Nazis feared that the Jewish conviction that all men are born in the image of God would damage the fascist lie according to which there is a superior race,” said Peres.

“They feared the prophetic vision may dent the Nazi sword.

“I am proud to be an arch enemy to the Nazi evil.

“I am proud of our fathers’ legacy of being absolutely opposed to racism.

“I am proud of our belief that there is no one Man superior to another Man.

“There is no superior race, only deep roots.”

Peres reminded the audience of Israel’s non-Jewish citizens of the importance of their not being discriminated against again. “We are obligated to make sure that none of them are ever discriminated against because of their nationality or religion,” he said. “This is the essence of the existence of the State of Israel. Israel is a defense shield, a safe haven and a great spirit. Had the State of Israel existed during those days, I am convinced that things would have been different. We have paid a high price, but we have not lost faith.”

Am Yisrael Chai. The People of Israel live.

DYLAN HORN

Dylan Horn is very excited about becoming a Bar Mitzvah. He has spent the last 13 years preparing for this day of becoming a man by learning to be responsible, mature, and always doing the right thing. Dylan is an exceptional student, being in all Accelerated Classes at Ten Oaks Middle School. Dylan's hobbies include using his 3D printer to design and build electronic parts such as remote control cars, planes, and boats. He also enjoys taking pictures of space using his telescope, and he also enjoys participating in Ninja Classes at Thomas Gymnastics. Dylan's future plans are to follow in his sister's steps by participating in JROTC in high school. His goal is to go to college to become a Mechanical Engineer in the Space Force.
