

MESSAGE FROM THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Our Vision at the JSCV is to be: To provide homeless veterans with the assistance necessary to ensure successful independent living. What does that really mean, "ENDING HOMELESSNESS?" Is that even possible? Many think not. Do we mean ending the homelessness of one person, or ending homelessness as a societal challenge? A bit of both. So we're not just talking about the individuals who go through a program and leave with a new lease on life. We're also talking about creating new ways to break cycles and stereotypes in our community.

This year, our "Feed the Hungry Mission" set out to feed homeless veterans and non-veterans living day to day on the streets of metro Atlanta. Through this mission JSCV has fed more than 600 homeless persons, during the next year the goal is to feed 500 a month. Each time that we take to the streets and feed the homeless, we recognize that we have the opportunity to touch a soul, share a moment, hear a new story, pray with someone but mostly importantly we leave knowing that "we have fed someone today".

Traditionally, when one thinks of a homeless individual, stereotypes abound. Often, homeless individuals are thought of as individuals without capabilities or motivation. We have made a decision to change their situation, and to help others. Just by helping someone else, we create an opening in the world for more inspiration and encouragement.

Over the course of this year, JSCV has seen incredible, positive shifts – ones that are not always quantifiable. We have 3 new board members who believe in our mission and have come on board. JSCV proudly welcomes Dionne Gant, Rolanda Cook, and Kenneth Moore.

Ending homelessness means, providing confidence, motivation, energy, and perhaps most of all, hope, in order to end their homelessness. That's what we're trying to do every day. Come and get involved – come see how we make hope.

Warm Regards, Denise Leak

'What is the city but the People?'

-William Shakespeare

William Shakespeare was never more correct the "city" is the "people" and because we have received such generous donations from the "people", Joseph & Sarah Caring for Veterans can better serve the homeless veteran population of the "city".

Our heartfelt thanks go out to:
