

IF YOU'RE NOT ROMANCING YOUR MATE
SOMEONE ELSE WILL BE

If you're not romancing your mate, someone else will be. That's a frightening thought, but a sad truth that many husbands and wives wake up to only when it's too late. God has a Plan and Purpose for your Life and it is real.

What happens when you stop romancing your mate? Estrangement and alienation become commonplace, and all too often this proceeds to separation and divorce. Lives are shattered, dreams and are goals are lost forever as couples take up new residences and children jockey for attention and a solid place to call home.

The second time around the chance of a marriage crumbling increases to nearly 65 percent...and everyone is uprooted again. At the next attempt—marriage number three—the possibility is about 75 percent that it will not survive. Holidays become a nightmare and a large hall would have to be rented just to hold the immediate families. Kids have three and four sets of grandparents, multitudes of aunts and uncles and half brothers and sisters and on and on.

This cycle adds further perversion and distortion to the curse of divorce. I call it a curse for good reason. And it is one that is transmitted from generation to generation. A couple headed down the road to divorce will frequently be crying at their son or daughter's divorce, their grandson or granddaughter's divorce, and if they live long enough, their great-grandson or great-granddaughter's divorce.

This is a fact of life today. In Exodus 34:7 the Bible says that iniquity of the fathers extends to four generations. Iniquity has been with us since the man rebelled against God and will be with us till the end. One only has to look to his or her own family to see this happening.

Mr. Kenneth Musko
724-355-4022

www.familymagazinetv.com

164 Westwood Manor

Butler, PA 16001
kmusko@aol.com

But you say, “That’s the Old Testament, Ken. I’m a Christian and that should not be happening.” Well, it is happening. The curse of divorce is over 50 percent for first-time marriages. Its about 65% after the second Marriage.

James 5:16 says, “Confess our faults to one another and pray one for another that ye may be healed.” Scripture is very clear that Christians must do this. For the unbeliever, he must first ask Christ not only to save him but to be Lord of his life. The moment he does that he can claim Christ’s blood over the curses and iniquities that have been handed down from generation to generation. A key point here is that once you except Jesus Christ and the Holy Spirit can come i into you and satan can no longer have you. The Holy Spirit now possesses you but, now watch this, satan can oppress you with iniquities that will cause you to stumble and fall. Yes he can and will come at you again and again. Even as a Christian he will bring in the iniquities of the past generations again and even land on you and your family with other iniquities that can then be passed down for generations. Remember you’re still going to heaven but many that don’t know how to deal with this will go battered, broken and bruised. That’s why It’s fact that the Christian behavior today isn’t much different than the non Christian. Wonder why, then read and discover the truth that will set you free to begin living in the blessings that Christ already shed his blood for you. Satan’s greatest tool is infidelity and if we don’t know how to deal with it then the reality of if you’re not romancing your mate someone else will be will abound.

This book is a first step toward understanding this concept and will provide you with the knowledge so that you can begin living in the blessings and not enduring the curses that so many couples are wallowing in today. There is hope for a faltering marriage, and that hope is found in Jesus Christ. Can your love for your spouse be restored? I believe that it can be. And furthermore I believe that you can once again begin romancing your mate. Because if you’re not then someone else will be.