Fourth Week of Advent – Finding Peace Both in Advent and Christmas

Dear Parishioners and friends,

We enter the last weekend of our Advent season. It is my hope that you have had a good season and are still catching up with the last-minute shopping and preparation to make this Christmas a memorable one with your family and friends.

The readings for the Fourth Week of Advent focus our attention on the initial struggle of St. Joseph in accepting the reality of Mary's pregnancy by the power of the Holy Spirit. How could Mary be pregnant? She was his betrothed and a good, loving, joyful, and holy maiden. But once Joseph understood what God was doing, he submitted to the divine will at work in their lives. Through the "yes" of both Mary and Joseph, we have become part of their family. And though they are now in heaven, we still have their Son, the Emmanuel, "God is with us."

Some of us may be anticipating our 2025 Christmas in the parish with mixed feelings of excitement and uncertainty. Is this our last Christmas together as a parish? Will we become part of a larger pastorate that will earn us a weekend Mass? Will our close-knit parish family and connection change? These questions are real, and many of us feel them deeply. But these very experiences make Christmas even more meaningful this year. Isaiah 9:1–6 places us in a similar situation as the Israelites, who longed for hope in uncertain times. The prophet tells us, "The people who walked in darkness have seen a great light... For a child is born to us, a son is given to us; upon his shoulder dominion rests." Human confidence must always be placed in God's promise of the Savior, who is the one we follow and worship.

God is truly with us in His Church—through His Word, the Sacraments, especially the Eucharist, the priests, and the parish community, whether made up of long-time members or newly gathered ones. God is with us now in this Journey in Faith, and He will be with us after the new pastorate is announced.

As Archbishop Zinkula says, "As pastorates come together in July, it will be especially important to see the face of Christ in others, especially within people unfamiliar to us. We'll need to introduce ourselves, form new relationships, and be open to different means of ministering and worshipping... Just as the world of St. Joseph was upended, so too our lives will change... yet as Joseph remained steadfast, we too will triumph over the temptations of the evil one toward division, if we listen to the voice of God's angel urging us not to be afraid."

Let us remember that God still loves His creation; He loves each of us. Filled with Christmas hope, let us continue to build our faith, seek God wherever He leads, encourage one another, help those who feel brokenhearted, and rebuild new communities together, bringing peace among people of goodwill.

Happy Advent and Merry Christmas to you and your family. Amen
