SUPPLYING ALCOHOL FOR YOUR WEDDING

Calculating the amount of alcohol you need at a wedding is a necessary part of wedding planning. It's also kind of nerve-wracking. There aren't many weddings where people go easy on the alcohol.

It's free and people are in the mood to celebrate! It can be pretty scary how quickly it adds up,

1. Divide your guests into drinking 'types' (e.g. 'heavy drinking males', 'heavy drinking females', 'light drinking males' etc).
 2. Estimate the average bottles/glasses of beer, wine, champagne and any other drinks they might individually consume over the time period (e.g. A heavy drinking male might consume 10 beers and 2 champagnes).
 3. Do this for each group and multiply it by the number of people in that group (e.g. 20 heavy drinking males would equal 200 beers and 40 glasses of champagne)
 1. Tally up your bottles and then cases required.
- Better yet, use Dan Murphy's party planner drinks calculator. It'll do the same thing but with scary accuracy, based on thousands of customer's events data.

WINES

People tend to stick to what they know, so you don't need to offer a huge choice.

- Keep your wine varieties simple and safe (2 or 3 whites, 2 or 3 reds)
- 1 type of bubbles, prosecco or Champagne
- 3 beer varieties should be plenty. 1 craft, 1 standard and a mid-strength or light beer.

NON DRINKERS

Have a few fancy options such as little Capi bottles or a non-alcoholic fruit punch to help them get into the party mood too. There's a fantastic range of non-alc drinks (wines, beers, ready-to-drink cans) that can make non-drinkers feel included and special.

PLAY IT SAFE, OVER CATER,
YOU CAN ALWAYS SEND EXTRAS BACK TO DAN MURPHYS.

It's not a ploy to get you to buy more than you need – but it really is always better to have a little too much than too little.

Dan Murphy's has an entire Wedding and Events Services Team dedicated to helping couples nail their wedding drinks? Neither did we until recently – and here's why you should care. No mucking about on your end trying to move multiple boot-loads of booze. Instead, your drinks will be affordably sent straight to your venue on time and in perfect condition, taking a huge weight off your shoulders.
