

Members of the Ohio Valley chapter of the Society for Pennsylvania Archaeology look over some arrowheads and other Native American artifacts in Butler last month. From left are Ginger Dlutowski, Brian Fritz, Pam Billman, Jamie Billman, Amanda Valko and Ed Dlutowski.

Archaeology is more than just digging in the dirt — it's studying where we came from. The Society for Pennsylvania Archaeology's Ohio Valley chapter is full of Butler County residents who strive to learn more about our past.

“Try to think about archaeology as you throw a pebble in the pond and the ripples go all over the place, well archaeology leads you in many different directions,” said Ed Dlutowski of Butler Township