Henry Miniter Law

SMS Text Messaging Privacy Policy

Effective Date: November 12, 2026

1. Purpose

Henry Miniter, Esq., LLC ("Firm," "we," "us," or "our") respects the privacy and confidentiality of its clients and prospective clients. This SMS Text Messaging Privacy Policy explains how we collect, use, protect, and retain information associated with text messaging communications between the Firm and individuals who consent to communicate with us by text message.

Our SMS messaging services are intended to facilitate convenient and efficient communications concerning legal representation, consultations, appointments, and other matters related to our legal services.

2. Consent to Receive Text Messages

By affirmatively opting in to SMS communications, clients and prospective clients authorize the Firm to send text messages to the mobile telephone number they provide.

These communications may include:

- Appointment scheduling and reminders.
- Case status updates and general communications.
- Requests for documents or information.
- Notifications concerning meetings, depositions, and other case-related events. Responses to client inquiries.
- Other administrative communications relating to the Firm's legal services.

Consent to receive SMS messages is voluntary and is not a condition of obtaining legal services or representation from the Firm.

Message frequency varies depending on the circumstances of the legal matter.

Message and data rates may apply.

3. Information We Collect

In connection with SMS communications, the Firm may collect and maintain:

- Client names and mobile telephone numbers. Records of consent to receive text messages.
- The content of text messages exchanged with the Firm.
- Dates, times, and other information associated with SMS communications.
- Information voluntarily provided through text messages concerning legal matters.

We collect and use this information for legitimate business purposes, including providing legal services, maintaining client communications, and complying with applicable legal and professional obligations.

4. Use and Disclosure of Information

The Firm uses information obtained through SMS communications only for purposes reasonably related to providing legal services, communicating with clients and prospective clients, administering our practice, and fulfilling applicable legal obligations.

We do not sell, rent, or share mobile telephone numbers, SMS opt-in information, or text messaging consent information with third parties or affiliates for marketing or promotional purposes.

SMS opt-in data and consent are not sold or transferred to third parties for their independent marketing purposes.

The Firm may use third-party technology providers, including telecommunications carriers and messaging service providers, to facilitate SMS communications. These providers may process information as necessary to deliver, maintain, or support our messaging services, subject to applicable confidentiality and data protection obligations.

Information may also be disclosed when authorized by the client, necessary to provide legal services, or required or permitted by applicable law or professional obligations.

5. Attorney-Client Confidentiality

The Firm recognizes its professional responsibility to preserve the confidentiality of information relating to the representation of its clients.

Text messages exchanged in the course of an attorney-client relationship may contain confidential or attorney-client privileged information. The Firm takes reasonable measures to protect the confidentiality of those communications in accordance with applicable rules of professional conduct.

However, conventional SMS text messaging is not necessarily end-to-end encrypted and may present security risks beyond the Firm's control.

Clients should avoid transmitting highly sensitive information, including Social Security numbers, financial account credentials, detailed medical information, or other sensitive records through ordinary SMS messaging unless the Firm specifically authorizes that method of communication.

When appropriate, the Firm may request that confidential documents or sensitive information be transmitted through a more secure communication method.

6. Data Security

The Firm employs reasonable administrative, technical, and organizational safeguards designed to protect information received through SMS communications against unauthorized access, use, or disclosure.

Nevertheless, no electronic communication system can guarantee absolute security. SMS communications may be vulnerable to interception, unauthorized access to mobile devices, misdirected messages, or disclosure through telephone carriers and other service providers.

Clients are encouraged to maintain appropriate security protections on their mobile devices and to notify the Firm promptly if their telephone number changes or their device is lost or compromised.

7. Opting Out of SMS Communications

Clients may withdraw their consent to receive SMS text messages at any time.

To discontinue SMS communications, reply STOP to a text message received from the Firm.

Clients may also contact the Firm directly by telephone or email to request discontinuation of SMS communications.

Upon receiving an opt-out request, the Firm will discontinue SMS communications to the designated telephone number in accordance with applicable requirements. A final text message confirming the opt-out may be sent.

Opting out of text messaging does not terminate the attorney-client relationship or otherwise affect the Firm's obligation to communicate with its clients. The Firm may continue communicating through telephone calls, email, postal mail, or other appropriate means.

8. Assistance and Contact Information

For assistance concerning the Firm's SMS messaging service, reply HELP to a text message received from the Firm, or contact:

Henry Miniter Law
303-414-2790
henryminiter@outlook.com
henryminiterlaw.com

9. Retention of SMS Communications

SMS communications relating to legal representation may be retained as part of the Firm's client records in accordance with its document retention policies, applicable law, and professional obligations.

Withdrawal of consent to receive text messages does not necessarily require the deletion of prior communications or records that the Firm is legally or professionally obligated to preserve.

10. Limitations of SMS Communications

SMS messaging is provided as a convenience and is not intended to replace formal legal communications when another method is appropriate.

Text messages should not be used for emergency communications or matters requiring immediate legal attention.

The Firm cannot guarantee the immediate receipt, review, or response to any text message. Mobile carriers are not liable for delayed or undelivered messages.

Communications initiated by prospective clients do not, by themselves, establish an attorney-client relationship. Such a relationship arises only upon agreement between the Firm and the client.

11. Changes to This Policy

The Firm reserves the right to modify this SMS Text Messaging Privacy Policy to reflect changes in its practices, technology, or applicable legal requirements.

Any revised policy will be made available through the Firm's website, together with the date of the most recent revision.

12. Contact

Questions concerning this SMS Text Messaging Privacy Policy or the Firm's use of personal information may be directed to:

Henry Miniter Law
303-414-2790
henryminiter@outlook.com
henryminiterlaw.com