Woodley signed a plea agreement filed Friday that states she would plead guilty to the Class B misdemeanor. The charge was amended from an earlier charge of criminal trespass.

A misdemeanor charge of engaging in a riot will be dismissed under terms of the agreement.

Woodley, star of the “Divergent” series and a vocal supporter of the Standing Rock Sioux Tribe, was arrested at a Dakota Access construction site on Oct. 10 in

The document Woodley signed said she admitted to acting in a manner with “intent to harass, annoy or alarm another person or in reckless disregard of the fact that the other person was harassed, annoyed or alarmed” by her behavior.

Online court records show a request to cancel Woodley’s trial, which was scheduled for March 31. A judge had not ruled on the plea agreement as of Friday.

Under the agreement, Woodley would forfeit $500 bond she posted after her arrest.

Defense attorney Alexander Reichert did not return a call seeking comment late Friday.

EDITOR COMMENT

Liberal Hollywood elites continue to receive preferential treatment. Maybe it's better that way to keep those idiots out of North Dakota's court system which, I still believe is fraught with worthless prosecutors like Todd Schwarz, Paul Emerson and even the Attorney General himself, Wayne Stenehjem.

One has to admire the orange jumpsuit though.
