Dear brother Truman,

God is blessing us! I reflect on your 9-30 letter conversation, as I also share two spot-on articles from the "AMERICAN FREE PRESS". To answer your first question: "NO!" I never get used to being caged like a dangerous animal. This all a design of torture, and for the persecuted Christian / political prisoner a means of silencing the TRUTH, not protecting anyone, except the REAL criminals: the powers of evil.

(Remember: much of our Bible was written by prisoners. But, as we can see, they often freely had prison visits. I've only had one brief contact visit in 13 years.)

COVID, it appears is an actual (man-made) disease, but is being used as a means of herding people here contrary to constitutional, Biblical protections of law, and same for people all across the earth. ~~is~~ The enemy, Satan hates life, liberty and pursuit of happiness! Oath takers nearly all have no honor for obedience to their oath. They go outlaw often.

Your book review of "Slaughter of the Dissidents" is "NO" surprise to me! Randy and Vickie Weaver and their children, years ago, before they moved to Ruby Ridge, Idaho regularly met with a Bible study group at the Sambo's restaurant on US 218, in Cedar Falls, Iowa. I often met clients and associates there and got to know them. Vickie Weaver was a saint, and their children were well behaved. Samuel and Vickie, Christian martyrs! They encouraged me to move my family when they left, but that was not in my heart at that time so I did not go.

Unlikely Messenger Says, 'Vote Trump'

• Niece of the infamous Osama bin Laden has an important warning for Americans

Noor bin Laden

America: 244 years ago, the resolve, courage, and wisdom of your Founding Fathers forever changed the course of history. For the first time, with the ratification of your Declaration of Independence, mankind was offered an unmatched societal ideal and dignified way of life. Human beings were recognized for what we truly are by nature: all created free and equal, endowed with unalienable rights which do not derive from any government, but from our Creator. With your Constitution, your Founders sealed these God-given rights, and protected them by instituting a limited form of self-government along with a robust justice system. This combination keeps the promise of freedom for future generations alive and allows for human injustices to be rectified.

This, America, is what makes your nation exceptional. It is why you have stood as a beacon of democracy and hope for all subjugated peoples over the past two centuries. During some of our darkest hours, we remember how you fought for those who couldn't defend themselves from tyranny, at the cost of your own brave men. The world is forever in debt for your sacrifice, and we are grateful for the refuge you provide those who can flee persecution.

This, America, is your heritage and the reason we still look to you as our champion of liberty to this day. . . . From the peaceful Hong Kong protesters who proudly brandish the American flag in the streets, to the Iranian students who refused to walk over a painted version of it on the ground of a Tehran university, people who live under oppressive regimes know firsthand that being free has no price. And they know that America is the ultimate shelter for the downtrodden.

Watching the gratuitous violence, streets burn, buildings and statues being defaced in America over these past months, I am heartbroken to see how an entire generation was successfully brainwashed into hating the very nation that has yielded the most freedom, justice, and equality anywhere.

I am also highly distressed by the blatant erosion at various levels of your most basic individual rights and freedoms as guaranteed by your Bill of Rights, from arbitrary censorship of speech to unlawful, politically motivated abuses of justice.

America, this is why I feel compelled to address you. Though I am an unlikely messenger at best, I am assured that the name that I carry is antithetical to the values I hold, and that my heart is in the right place: with you. The level of urgency . . . bound me to speak up and warn you . . .

The question is, how did we get to this point? They want you to believe that this is a recent phenomenon. The truth is that the undoing of America has been decades in the making. The globalists, Deep State, swamp, whichever name you call them, have been hard at work to weaken America's sovereignty and standing as world leader. Intent on erecting a new system of world governance where they would be in total control, they are seeking to undermine the fundamental principle of your country, "a government for the people by the people," replacing it instead with a world order of international institutions ultimately puppeteered by a caste of technocrats, oligarchs, and international bankers.

Though your Constitution stands firmly in their way, it never deterred them. Like a Trojan horse, they infiltrated governmental and intelligence agencies, and all realms of society—education, media, entertainment, culture. At their disposal, tools of mass population influence: propaganda, fake news, and censorship. By pushing their Marxist-socialist progressive agenda for years, they set out to destroy your fundamental values and divide you. They negated God, dissolved the family unit, and disavowed us from moral objectivity, effectively leaving a vacuum of degeneracy, cognitive dissonance, and absurdity in its wake.

However, they didn't count on a great awakening of people tired of being crushed by their self-serving economic policies. Nor did they foresee that Covid-19 would highlight their system's gross failings, from an overdependence on a global supply chain to corruption in major institutions like the World Health Organization. They didn't anticipate that we would all rally online to share information and real news, bypassing their controlled mainstream media outlets. Above all, they never thought Hillary Clinton would lose.

Since President Donald Trump's victory, these nefarious forces have done everything in their power to stop him from reversing past administrations' destructive policies. They have failed, hoax after hoax. Despite their relentless attacks on all fronts, President Trump has demonstrated he is the only leader who can save us from a bleak future. As evidenced by his first term, results of his America-first policy speak for themselves.

Domestically, he removed handicapping regulations to American economic growth, rebuilt a depleted military, brought back manufacturing and revamped dying industries by renegotiating trade deals and cutting taxes, achieved energy independence, curbed immigration—all of which contributed to setting record unemployment rates. He also saved your taxpayer dollars by withdrawing from corrupt international organizations and agreements. Remarkably, he tackled neglected issues such as human trafficking and unjust incarceration, defunded Planned Parenthood, took care of your disregarded veterans, and lowered prescription drug prices. All these undertakings prove just how much he values the lives and wellbeing of all Americans.

By strengthening America from within, President Trump bolstered his plans when it comes to foreign policy, and thanks to his vision and tactical use of diplomatic avenues, has made the world a much safer place since taking office. To name a few achievements: he stood up to China, kept us out of new wars; made Europe comply with their NATO requirements; solidified ties with Israel; overturned the disastrous Iran deal; obliterated ISIS; took down other key terrorists; and facilitated a historic peace deal between Israel and the UAE. His administration has also made Christian persecution worldwide a top priority with the State Department.

All the above achievements will be torpedoed with a Joe Biden/Kamala Harris presidency, and the dream of America's survival to see her weak and on her knees would be fulfilled. Make no mistake, America, you are under attack. Supported by the fake news propaganda machine and violent Marxist groups such as Antifa [and Black Lives Matter] with their ISIS-type tactics, they have pushed their agenda through fearmongering, hypocrisy, lies, and destruction onto you, the American people, and for one motive only: power. The escalation of the past four years is your preview of what to expect should we lose: an abject repudiation of our . . . values and utter disregard for your individual rights. This insurrection, if successful, would sign the unravelling of law and order and the end of your republic as we know it.

America, you are at the very edge of the precipice. Please wake up! Take hold! Fight for your country and be proud of your roots! Uphold your values. Stand for your flag and your anthem. Defend your history. Don't resort in the face of those who seek to rewrite it, to their narrative and justify the destruction of your nation. . . .

We need you to stay the course, America. You are our last safeguard from permanent civilizational collapse and if you lose, all humanity loses.

Be assured, we are with you in this decisive hour in your history. All of us freedom-seeking and loving people across the globe pray for you to succeed. ★

Noor bin Laden is the 33-year-old niece of Osama bin Laden. She recently gave an interview to the New York Post and called for Americans to vote for President Donald Trump. She now lives in Switzerland but considers herself "an American at heart." Who better than she to judge whether those rioting in the streets of America are really domestic terrorists? We invite reader comments on this and other articles.

Attacks on Trump Push Polls

By Larry Elder

According to a recent Hill-Harris poll of registered voters, President Donald Trump's approval rating just hit its highest mark since June. This may or may not hold after back-to-back alleged "bombshells" about what Trump knew about Covid-19 and about Trump allegedly disparaging fallen soldiers as "losers."

But still, for Democrats, these new poll numbers are triggering yet another round of head-shaking. After all, the Democratic characterization of Trump is that of a crass, ignorant, xenophobic, incompetent, mass-murdering racist.

How, they ask, can someone who put the "d" in deplorable not find himself universally rejected? Or, as Peter Strzok, the fired senior FBI agent who led the Trump-Russia collusion probe, famously texted about the 2016 election, "Hillary should win 100 million to 0."

How, Dems ask, can such an overtly racist president get a 36% approval rating by black likely voters in a July Rasmussen poll? After all, Trump recently denied the existence of "systemic racism" in law enforcement and said that there are "some bad apples" and cops who "choke" at critical times. Similarly, Attorney General Bill Barr, at a recent House Judiciary Committee hearing on police response to the street protests, also disputed the claim of police "systemic racism." Barr said: "I think it would be an oversimplification to treat the problem as rooted in some deep-seated racism generally infecting our police departments. It seems far more likely that the problem stems from a complex mix of factors, which can be adressed with focused attention over time."

And, in Florida, an NBC News/Marist poll shows Trump and Biden neck-and-neck at 48% each among likely voters eight weeks before the election. Even more astonishing to those who despise Trump because he "hates" Hispanics is that, in Florida, likely Hispanic voters give him a 50% approval rating versus Biden's 46%.

There are many reasons why Trump is outperforming among likely Hispanic and black voters compared with the typical Republican presidential candidate.

First, it's hard to beat, pre-pandemic shutdown, historically low Hispanic and black unemployment numbers. Trump supports school choice, enabling urban parents in communities of color to decide whether to send their kid to an often-underperforming government school versus taking the public dollars allocated for their kids to access a better school option.

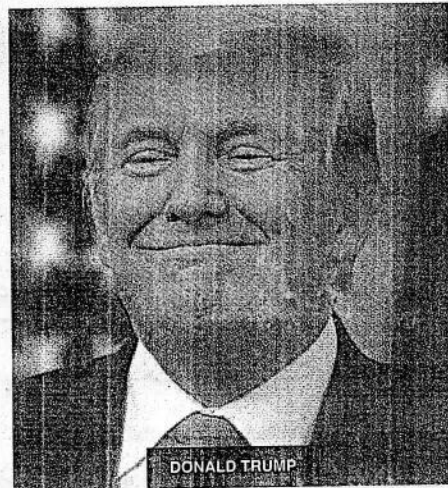

Second, a lot of Hispanics do not like illegal immigration any more than do non-Hispanics.

Third, the daily and nightly street protests and the protesters' anti-cop rhetoric help make President Trump's "law and order" pitch look pretty appealing. As for the demand to "defund the police," a Gallup poll performed June 23 to July 6 found that the percentage of whites who want police staffing to remain where it is or even increased is very close to the percentage of blacks who want the staffing to remain where it is or to have it increased, at 88% and 81%, respectively.

It has become increasingly clear the goal is not a more "diverse" police force. The chief of police of Rochester, N.Y., who was fired after the death of a black man in police custody, is black. The police chief of Minneapolis, where George Floyd died, is black and Hispanic. The racial compositions of the police departments of New York City and Los Angeles increasingly reflect the racial demographics of their cities. Or, as the left likes to put it, the departments look like their cities.

Chanting protesters in Rochester made their goals clear: "If you don't give us our [stuff], we'll shut [cities] down." A Chicago Black Lives Matter organizer defended looting in the city's Magnificent Mile as "reparations."

Well, buckle up. According to Mapping Police Violence, 30 unarmed black men were killed in 2019, a monthly average of 2.5. So, we could easily see 2.5 "police brutality" protests per month. According to Statista, 7,407 blacks were victims of homicide in 2018—a monthly average of 617. And it is estimated that 90% of black homicide victims are killed by other blacks.

As for defunding the police, rapper Tupac Shakur said in 1994: "The same crime element that white people are scared of, black people are scared of. The same crime element that white people fear, we fear. So, we defend ourselves from the same crime element that they're scared of. You know what I'm saying? While they waitin' for legislation to pass and everything, we next door to the killer. We next door to 'em, you know, because we up in the projects, where there's 80 [black people] in the building. All them killers they lettin' out, they right there in that building. But just cause we black, we get along with the killers or something? We get along with the rapists cause we black and we from the same hood? What is that? We need protection, too."

How ironic if, after the media and Democratic leaders' three-plus years of maligning Trump as a xenophobic racist, Hispanic and black voters help keep Trump in the White House for four more years. ★
