Dear Doctors.

I am writing today in a limited capacity due to my neurological disorder that happened due to a misdiagnosis of my AuDHD.

This research paper is unique is that it is reversed to what you are normally used to. Due to my unique challenge of free writing and free thinking I no longer have the ability to react or think about my thoughts. They just spill out.

Because of this unique ability I can slip into a trance. I can free write and free think like the great minds of our time. I have a unique condition now. I am simple minded brilliant.

I don't understand. While this is impossible to believe I write to you today to ask for your help in realizing that this research paper is a unique perspective of my mind. Because of my ability to free write and free think I can automatically write down the thoughts in my head. I no longer feel embarrassment or shame.

I do not want meds or diagnosis either

This is a real research paper based on the scientific community's own works to diagnose my mind as it speaks to me. I hope you realize the breakthrough this can potentially be for alot of different science.

Somehow, I have developed this ability to do a misdiagnosis. It is in medical files from my doctor. My psychologist records. My councillor records. My entire reddit account is a massive vision board. My entire facebook looks like one too.

In any case, a zoom meeting is in order. I deal with a neurological issue and anxiety. So, we should discuss and once you meet me you will understand the implications here.

Regards,

Shawn Bernard
