Aim 4 Peace Violence Prevention Program

Aim4Peace (Aim for Peace) is a public health approach to reduce shootings and homicides. Aim4Peace uses highly-trained violence interrupters and outreach staff, public education campaigns, Neighborhood Action Teams and community mobilization to reverse the violence epidemic in Kansas City, Missouri.

Aim4Peace focuses on the neighborhood factors that most often contribute to violence, helping those who are considered at highest risk of committing offenses due to their living or employment situation.

The Aim4Peace program began in 2008 and was originally based on the Ceasefire: Stop the Shooting project in Chicago. Though Aim4Peace currently focuses on the Police Department's East Patrol Division, with continued success the plan will be implemented throughout the City. Making the No Return Investment

Presenters / Moderators
Eric Jackson and Kori Thiessen

Established in 2009, it is the mission of the Reentry and Resources work group to identify resources for people with a criminal background, enhance efforts to ensure successful reentry, reduce recidivism and enhance public safety. This work group achieves these goals through collaborative partnerships with government agencies, faith-based organizations, career centers and all other stakeholders.

In 2015 Reentry & Resources became a local non-profit that provides referrals for service and financial assistance to returning citizens and those who are on probation. Our group also conducts activities, trainings, and presentations to raise awareness in our communities in hopes of decreasing the stigma associated with criminal backgrounds. Our group aids in lowering the unemployment rate of citizens negatively impacted by a felony background. Our services improve our community by improving a returning citizen’s opportunities for success. Reentry & Resources is operated by volunteers from our communities.

Ninety-five percent of the over 1.5 million incarcerated individuals in the United States will eventually be released back into the community (West & Sabol, 2009; ACA, 2013). Of those, approximately 65% will reoffend and return to prison within 3 years of release (BOP, 2013). Communities all across the country are affected: as a victim, a taxpayer, a family member, or a community resource.

While offenders are released to diverse communities with differing levels of support and intrinsic motivation, experience suggests that they share many of the same challenges. This Reentry Simulation will illustrate the journey to self-sufficiency and the barriers that may contribute to feelings of helplessness and decreased self-efficacy. Participants will assume the identity of an ex-offender and perform tasks in four 15 minute sessions with each session representing a week. By the end of this workshop participants will have simulated a month in the life of someone who has released from prison. Participants will encounter the same challenges faced by many ex-offenders as they try to complete their court ordered obligations as well as maintain their day to day life. This simulation suggests that, ultimately, the ability to navigate “the system” may be a primary factor in the relationship between resiliency and recidivism.

NSU's Online Criminal Justice Program Named one of the Nation's Best for Veterans

Once again, Nova Southeastern University (NSU) has been recognized for providing students with one of the nation's top online academic programs. U.S. News & World Report has released its rankings of top online graduate programs for veterans, and NSU's Criminal Justice program was ranked in a tie for 21st.

"For more than 50 years, NSU has worked hard to create programs that provide academic opportunities for students that meet their varied needs," said George Hanbury, Ph.D., President and CEO of NSU. "One segment of our student population that's growing is our veterans, and we want to ensure we provide them with educational opportunities that best suit their needs as they transition back to civilian life."

Dr. Hanbury said that this latest honor is in keeping with NSU's Vision 2020, where the university will be recognized by accrediting agencies, the academic community and the general public as a "premier, private, not-for-profit university of quality and distinction." This is the second time NSU's criminal justice program has been recognized by U.S. News & World Report – earlier this year the online program for all students was ranked 22nd in the country.

This is the third year that U.S. News & World Report has issued these rankings, which identify programs that provide veterans with high-quality, flexible online educational options. According to the report, to be eligible, programs had to be part of an institution of higher learning that is certified for the GI Bill, be participating in the Yellow Ribbon Program or be a public institution that charges in-state tuition for out-of-state veterans. In addition, to be ranked, a school had to be part of the top 75% of schools in the overall 2015 Best Online Programs rankings by the publication (NSU was in the top 22 programs overall.)

"We've worked hard to position our criminal justice program as one of the premiere programs online and I'm very proud of this recognition," said Kimberly Durham, Psy.D., dean of NSU's Institute for the Study of Human Service, Health and Justice. "It's a reflection of the program's faculty – they are truly at the heart of what distinguishes our program from others."

NSU's criminal justice graduate program is unique as it's offered entirely online. This format allows students to participate in courses from anywhere in the world and provides flexibility in completing a master's degree while providing time for students to continue their current career if need be. NSU's master's program in criminal justice is designed for those interested in careers in several areas, including, but not limited to: police officer; detective; FBI special agent; DEA agent; Secret Service special agent; Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) special agent; and Federal Air Marshall.

Member Spotlight

This quarter's member spotlight is our very own Amber Causey. Amber recently completed her capstone course for her Master's degree in Criminal Justice. Her thesis was geared towards expanding the knowledge in the fields of human trafficking and prostitution. This is a very significant accomplishment for her, as she was a victim of sex trafficking as a minor. Amber was someone who dropped out of high school, was homeless, and abused in so many different ways. She was told over and over again she would never amount to anything in life. She prayed that if she got out of that situation, she would somehow reach back and help other victims to become survivors. Here she is now, living her dreams and this is only the beginning. Amber did this all while being a single parent with two children, one of which she carried and delivered in the middle of her Master's program.

Amber is also writing a book about her life story and battle with PTSD and depression because of the things she has experienced. She would love to share her story with others to provide encouragement that anything is possible and to never give up on your dreams and goals.
