Summer 2018

Please join us in congratulating National Board Member Ivy Yarckow-Brown on receiving four outstanding teaching awards. Professor Yarckow-Brown is an outstanding individual who loves being an educator. She is one of the top chapter Advisors in the country and a wonderful human being. As Advisor of the Sigma Mu Sigma chapter since 2006 she has brought her chapter to the conference every year, participated in all the events, ran for national student office, was elected to the National Board and a National Advisor (twice), and along with her co-Advisor Mandy Muse chartered the second Alpha Phi Sigma Alumni Circle.

She is a Senior Instructor and has been teaching at Missouri State University since 2005. She earned her Masters of Science in Criminal Justice from the University of North Texas in 2003 and has begun work on her PhD in the areas of Criminology and Criminal Justice. Her research interests include violence, sex crimes, homicide, restorative justice, gender-related crime, and juvenile programs. In the past, she has worked in the fields of juvenile corrections, law enforcement, and investigations of family violence for a district attorney's office.

We praise her dedication and stamina and look forward to her many more years of educating and participating in Alpha Phi Sigma. Congratulations to her and her beautiful family for receiving these prestigious awards.

Alumni Around the Nation

I'm grateful for the people who came in my path who helped me to get where I am. I credit my life, my son, gifts, skills, knowledge and abilities to God."
- Lisa Williams

Alpha Phi Sigma Golden Alumna, Una Lisa Williams, received the Oklahoma Woman Veteran of the Year Award.

Former Sgt. Una "Lisa" Williams emerged from being an orphan to serving the underprivileged. Her time in the U.S. Army was only the beginning of fulfilling her life calling.

At age 6, Una "Lisa" Williams became an orphan. She had never known her biological father, and tragically, her mother was murdered by an ex-intimate partner. Her aunts, Marjorie and Genevieve, each took in Williams and her two sisters. She credits them for keeping the family together. Williams went to live with her Aunt Genevieve in Donaldsonville, Louisiana.

Although her time with her mother was short, Williams gained strength from her memories of a mother who worked hard and who believed the best of her three daughters. Even as a youth, she remembers developing an early interest in helping other children and young adults to reach their potential. "I always just wanted to be able to help people and help them get what they needed," she said.

After graduating from high school in 1987, Williams moved to New Orleans, where she worked jobs including a cashier, housecleaner, babysitter and secretary. Following her interest in law enforcement, she earned a Private Investigator & Security Guard Certification through Rutledge College; she also completed secretarial training courses. When her son, Matthew, was born in 1990, Williams continued to work several jobs in order to make ends meet.

By 1993, Williams decided that joining the U.S. Army was the best option to provide for Matthew. "My main focus was making a better life for my son and myself," she said. She enlisted and was sent for active duty basic training in Fort Jackson, South Carolina. Then, she went to Fort Lee, Virginia, where she completed Advanced Individual Training (AIT) as a petroleum supply specialist.

The decision to join the military was not without sacrifice. As a soldier and a single parent, Williams was required to release temporary custody of her son; he went to stay with his godmother. Things went well for a few months, until Williams received a call letting her know that the caregiver's health no longer allowed her to care for Matthew.

"I knew I might have to leave the military. I was very distraught," Williams said. "I remember standing in formation crying. When I set a goal, I want to complete that goal. I just thought, 'I can't go back to that life I had before.'"

Mercifully, a drill sergeant inquired about Williams' predicament and allowed her to go home temporarily. "He believed in me and gave me that opportunity. He put his career on the line," Williams said. "To this day, I appreciate what he did."

"It's important that we as women veterans continue to have the camaraderie and keep our history alive. We call each other 'warrior sisters,'" she said. The group is currently working on a project to help veterans with needed items. "We serve veterans and families in many capacities," she said.

For her contributions, Williams was named the 2017 Oklahoma Woman Veteran of the Year. In front of her peers, Williams was humbled to receive the designation. "When my name was called, I was shaking and crying," she said. "People know what I'm doing is from the heart. When I see that I'm helping with the needs of others, it gives me joy."

When she's not volunteering with the organization and in numerous other capacities, Williams is involved in youth outreach, giving teens and young adults a forum to share their hearts' desires, voice their challenges and be encouraged to pursue goals. Williams has co-authored two books dedicated to women. Her first book as author, "Predestined to Soar: Rise to See Who You Were Meant to Be," releases in March 2018.

Margo DeGange, founder of Women of Splendor Ministries, said, "Una Lisa Williams is one of those unique individuals who lives with a sense of purpose every single day. I'm honored to be her mentor, coach and colleague. You cannot separate who she is as a person from the life work that she does."

Williams won't be slowing down anytime soon in pursuing her life's passions. "The support and encouragement from my family, friends, and my own history, assisted in keeping me strong and dedicated," she said. "I'm grateful for the people who came in my path who helped me to get where I am. I credit my life, my son, gifts, skills, knowledge and abilities to God. I know I couldn't do it by myself; I'm very grateful."

Joshua Smallridge, Ph.D.

Master of Science in Criminal Justice

"Life often takes us in unexpected directions. If someone would have told me four years ago that I would gain an interest in conducting research, and would ultimately return to Fairmont State University as a professor after receiving my Ph.D., I would not have believed it. I attribute this unpredicted but magnificent turn in my life to the tremendous guidance I received while pursuing my Master's degree in Criminal Justice at Fairmont State University. That guidance gave me the confidence, skills, and most importantly the aspiration I needed to be successful. I feel fortunate to be in a position to positively affect the lives of others through the program that had such a huge impact on my own life."

University of North Florida

Pi Omega Chapter

Alpha Phi Sigma-Pi Omega at the University of North Florida conducted a donation drive for the Teaching Animals & Inmates Life Skills (TAILS) program) from February 26-March 30, 2018. For this drive, training treats, pill pockets, and dog shampoo were collected. TAILS is a collaborative effort bringing together prison inmates and shelter dogs. The TAILS program maintains partnerships with shelters throughout Northeast Florida as well as the State of Florida Correctional System and sheriffs' offices. This program is designed to partner inmates with dogs in need of training and taught socialization skills. While the dogs are in the program, they live with the inmates in the correctional institutions. Through this mutually beneficial collaboration, the inmates also learn teamwork and empathy which has a positive outcome on their behavior. Once the dogs complete the training program, they are eligible for adoption into forever homes.

Alpha Phi Sigma-Pi Omega, of University of North Florida, hosted their 3rd Annual Guest Lecture Series. The lecture series was held on March 8, 2018 with over eighty students and faculty in attendance. Dr. Andy Hansen, from Western Carolina University, presented a lecture titled "Police Use of Force: Origins and Current Issues in Democratic Policing." Dr. Hansen received his Bachelor of Science in Criminology and Criminal Justice, Master of Arts in Criminology and Criminal Justice, and Ph.D. in Criminology and Criminal Justice from the University of South Carolina. He is currently an Assistant Professor at Western Carolina University. In his presentation, he described the derivation and definition of police use of force. Dr. Hansen also shared the methodology behind research he completed with the Prince George's County Police Department and another project that he is continuing to develop. At the conclusion of the presentation, students had the opportunity to ask Dr. Hansen questions regarding police use of force and his research.
