Personal Introduction

Wendy Jiang is the Assistant Manager at Causey & Ye Law, P.L.L.C., where she has overseen the firm's operations since 2023. She manages human resources, client invoicing, expense tracking, and year-end audit preparation, and she designed and implemented a billing and accounting system that enhanced transparency and audit readiness. Wendy also directs the firm's marketing and outreach efforts, coordinating sponsorships and building partnerships with law schools, professional organizations, and community forums.

Beyond administration, Wendy supports the legal team across a wide range of practice areas. She has prepared hundreds of immigration filings, including family-based and employment-based green card petitions (EB-1, EB-2 NIW, EB-3), EB-5 investor petitions, and asylum applications. She also assists with divorce, civil litigation, criminal defense, and business cases, providing bilingual coordination and translation services. Wendy plays an active role in team development by mediating conflicts, strengthening collaboration, and fostering a positive and productive workplace culture.

In 2024, Wendy traveled to Beijing to initiate collaborations with leading Chinese law firms, further expanding the firm's international legal network. She also helps maintain relationships with universities and professional associations, ensuring the firm remains engaged both locally and globally.

With a background in business analytics and management, Wendy combines data-driven decision-making with people-centered leadership. She is committed to building systems that enhance efficiency, support growth, and sustain collaboration across the firm.
