

August 15, 2023 – Feast of the Assumption

My children, thank you for being here with me to celebrate with me. My beloveds, you honor me greatly. My beloveds, do not take for granted that which God has blessed you with. Bring your grateful heart before your Almighty Father, my son, and the Holy Spirit, for gratefulness is always embraced and treasured. Reach out to others with that grateful heart, to others who are in need of love, who are in need of hope, who feel orphaned by the world.

My daughter, just because you have your family and are surrounded by them, when there is no love, this is the greatest injustice of humankind. But you, my children, that are here and those that hear this message are being called to embrace those abandoned by love, the orphans of the world that feel displaced and abandoned. You are being showered with the graces of mercy: it is yours as you respond with a “yes” to this grace.

My beloveds, my jewels given to me by our Father to show you and guide you in a perfect way to my son.

My Mary, my beloved, I have given you a prayer for my children that are still fighting the battle alone. And I have given you a prayer for those children who are already with us here. Please, my children, these prayers are storming the heavens for those still suffering on this earth and a prayer for all those that were not given a chance to live the life God intended for them.

Peace, peace, peace of Jesus be with you, and thank you for being here with me today.
