TOBY REICH SPEECH THERAPY M.A., CCC-SLP

Facilitating Communication with your "Late Talker".

Parents can use communication temptations to promote a late talker to "use his/her words" to communicate. Responding to nonverbal communication is also important for increasing your toddler's overall communication. By providing words for his actions, the parent or caregiver is mapping for the child the words he should be using.