

All Comments 8Viewing Options Andrew 1 month ago

Never get between politicians and property developers' legal donations - never.

Remember when Meriton first purchased the site they were publicly asked if they planned to seek high rise rezoning. Meriton said they had no intention of looking to build highrise there.

Trust Meriton? Sure can't!thumb_up  ReplyMichael 2 months ago

Meriton purchased a site with an approved masterplan that was appropriate for the area, it had resident and council support, if the NSW Government approves the Meriton monstrosity it will be the worst planning decision in the history of the state.

thumb_up 7  ReplyXtine 2 months ago

As long as Meriton fund extending the Kingsford light rail down to Little Bay, let them go for it. That would be a win win - the light rail might get some patronage, and the development would be worth more to the developer due to access to public transport (other than more stinky busses) thumb_up 1  ReplyJack 2 months ago

Please Gladys, approve this. We need to go upwards and stop the urban sprawl into farmland.

thumb_up 4  ReplyAndrew 2 months ago

No way.

thumb_up 3  ReplyMatt 2 months ago

If NSW planning department approves this, it will truly show all they care about is money and big business? This was zoned to be a certain height by council and people have bought in the existing buildings on this zoning. The proposed building height is over 3 times the zoning, Meriton have showed disregard to petitions and community opposition. This will be the saddest of days if our government allows this, please don't put money over people NSW government.

thumb_up 14  Reply

flag

---

brian 2 months ago

I agree, but it's Meriton we're talking about here. They always get their way I'm afraid.

thumb_up 4  Reply

---

Thomas 2 months ago

The area needs redevelopment, but Meriton would be the last company on the list to give it to

thumb_up 2  Reply