

The Aberdeen Historical Review is a peer-reviewed undergraduate journal based in the History Society in affiliation with the History Department at the University of Aberdeen. Founded and managed by undergraduate students, AHR aims to support and develop first-class undergraduate scholarship covering different fields of history from ancient through to modern periods that feature a variety of historical approaches. AHR is a proud member of the Society of Undergraduate Humanities Publications (SUHP), and it provides an early career opportunity to publish in a university press.

We are thrilled to invite current students at the University of Aberdeen, who have completed a Level 3 or 4 History course or who have produced essays with a historical focus for Level 3 or 4 non-History courses, to submit their upper first-class essays for the consideration of AHR. Accepted papers will be published in the second issue (June 2022) of the inaugural AHR volume. The journal is open access, and you can find the first issue here: <https://abdnhistory.co.uk/published-issues>.

Guidelines for submissions:

- All essays that received an upper first-class mark (e.g., the equivalent of A1-A3 on the Common Grading Scale) in a Level 3 or 4 course at the University of Aberdeen are welcome.
 - Authors are encouraged to apply changes suggested by the markers before submitting their work to the AHR.
 - Please disclose the mark the essay received, the name of the course coordinator, and the course code in your submission email.
 - Under special circumstances, the editors may allow for essays based on presentations given in academic contexts (e.g., at conferences or society events). In this case, authors must provide a reference from a member of a university department.
- Essays not produced for a History course must have a historical focus (e.g., examining the construction of race in Shakespeare's writings).
- Submitted essays must be in an MS Word format.
- Please ensure you have applied the AHR style guide to your essay before submission. Essays not following the MHRA referencing style will not be considered for publication.
- The length of the essay must be 2,500 to 5,000 words (including footnotes, excluding bibliography).
- To ensure a fair, blind peer-review process, please remove any identifying elements from the essay (e.g. your name, student identification number, email addresses, etc.).
- Authors of accepted essays will receive suggested revisions from anonymous peer-reviewers to help improve the work before publishing.

Please submit your essays to info@abdnhistory.co.uk by Friday, 4th of February 2022.

For more details regarding copyright, the AHR style guide, members of the editorial board, etc., refer to <http://abdnhistory.co.uk/about-this-journal/> or contact us through the email address above.

We look forward to reading your research and working with you.

Managing Editor

Signe Olesen
(class of 2022)

Layout Editor

Jitka Drahotska
(class of 2022)

Submissions Editor

Margarita Cherednikova
(class of 2022)

Assistant Layout Editor

Annika Palosaari
(class of 2022)

Editorial Assistant

Davide Lamparelli
(class of 2022)

Faculty Advisor

Dr Bradford Bow