I created this piece based on sustainable transportation. One of my favorite content creators often rides his bike across Japan for charity, so I drew a bike. A bike is a sustainable form of transportation, but it also signifies this creator. The reason why this creator is so important is because he uses the money he raises to donate to a variety of charities, and he does it in a way that can encourage more people to bike 50% or more of his viewers bike to places instead of using a car due to his influence. I drew flowers to represent the environmental affect on sustainable transport, and a cat for the same reason.
