
KENTUCKY SCHOOL BUS DRIVER STRIKE OVER. ALKIRA'S TECH EVANGELIST BACK TO WORK.

William Collins on his last day moonlighting as Ms. Frizzle credit: Al Gore

Nov 3, 2024 Lexington, KY

A months long school bus driver strike has finally come to an end, relieving backfills from their bus driving duties.

As the school year started late August 2024, so did the problems. School bus drivers across Kentucky went on strike, leaving thousands of children stranded on the sidewalk like baby Julia Roberts in the making and parents like Alkira's Tech Evangelist, William Collins step into the role or shepherding children to school. This tragic event ripped Collins away from an already short-staffed marketing team.

According to scorned school bus drivers, they forgot over the summer how awful an actual bus full of children was and questioned logic. "I only gets a $0.50 this year. I got on that bus and two stops in, I just walk off." Said Edna, Kentucky School Bus Driver currently on strike.

However, in early November, feet finder busted, ending the long awaited bus driver strike. With the strike over, Alkira's Tech Evangelist William Collins, is back to his desk.

"Man, it's ... just so much road time!", expressed Collins.

Alkira's marketing team is busy putting Collins to work

INTERNS LEAVE US IN HOPES OF REAL JOBS ONE DAY

Engineering Interns forced into LinkedIn material in the San Jose Office.

As summer draws to a close, we want to give a huge shoutout to our summer interns. They became a vital part of the engineering teams in San Jose Office.

Abhinav Balla, Tamnhi Vu, Prabhat Edupuganti, Kunal and Aishani Mohapatra, although forced to partake in company shenanigans like baby showers, and ping pong games, always did it with a smile.

Traveling from far, the interns “really helped the office feel alive on Tuesdays and Thursdays,” said Emma, Alkira Office Queen when asked about the interns.

We wish the interns the best, and thanked them for all their hard work. Some traveled from far every week, just to be here. We hope to see them again.

CHAMPAGNE WISHES AND CAVIAR DREAMS LOOM OVER 49ERS AND MNF EVENT

Upcoming Field Event with Infloblox at the 49er Season Opener which happens to coincide with being the First Monday Night Football game of the season, and the first game that cry baby Aaron Rodgers is playing football again. With much anticipation, comes sales guy expectations. What was once a simple happy hour and football event now summons the hi-brow sign-off of Robin Leach’s Lifestyles and the Rich and The Famous Days.

“60.” said Stacy Dawson, Field Marketing Manager at Alkira when asked how many attendees and tickets Nathan, West Coast Account Manager believes he will get to attend this event and need to purchase. The original thought was 25 people.

West Coast Sales Nathan pictured above pushing his new book in a Hot Air Balloon above Levi Stadium.

With a low volume of tickets remaining to purchase, and with zero tickets for this event having been purchased -- the budget for this event just skyrocketed.

Remaining available tickets, according to seetgeek.com are averaging nearly $300 a ticket. This would make the cost of 60 tickets alone $18,000. This total does not account for all the other stuff.

Each sales rep has a budget of $5,000 per quarter for an event. Although the partner Infloblox has agreed to financially support us like a sugar baby, simple math tells us Nathan is still coming up short.

Let’s wish Nathan the best on his champagne wishes, and caviar dreams.

The San Francisco 49ers take on the New York Jets September 9th at Levi Stadium. Happy Hour is at some mexican restaurant in Santa Clara around 2:30 PM and “60” prospects are supposedly coming.

Stay tuned for results from this exciting event to come mid-September.

CLASSIFIEDS

Wanted

FT Kid Schleper

Marketing team looking for FT person to “schlep” children to and from school, etc. Must like driving...a lot.

Send your resume to william@alkira.net
Serious inquiries only.

NANNY NEEDED

ISO babysitter for sales team. Must be good at herding kittens.

See marketing for details.

For Sale

2022 Mac Book Pro , silver. Charges. Maybe. Two previous owners. Zero promises.
See Marketing for details.

SEXUAL HARASSMENT TRAINING THREATS EVOKE COPYRIGHT INFRINGEMENT LAWSUIT FROM ALANIS MORISSETTE

Recent non-copacetic events at Alkira have created an extreme sense of urgency surrounding mandatory Sexual Harassment Training that comes with a bit of a warning - and its own set of issues.

Those who fail to take the sexual harassment training course have been threatened with unpaid leave. According to sources, Alanis Morissette, seven time Grammy Winner, has caught wind and “sent her people.” The level of irony - threatening to learn about not threatening hits a little too close to her hit song “Irony.” Don’t you think?

To take the training and get your paycheck on time, go to your Gmail inbox and search for Diversys or email HR.

Rumors of Stanley to invest in Alkira

Rumors are swirling that Alkira has now reached a golden threshold of purchases that has raised eyebrows of the C-Suite at Stanley and their pocket books.

Stanley feels they should just invest in us at this point if we keep buying this many mugs.

No formal comment from either Stanley or Alkira was given when contacted for comments.

Competitor Yeti declined to make any comments, or offer any discounts.

Atif on track to be the main Packet Pusher Star of 2025

Our very out Atif Khan is slated to become the shining star of Packet Pushers into 2025 with taking over every single podcast for the remainder of the year, and being the first one into next.

Packet Pushers, who misses the “good ‘ole days” when everything was super fun is really excited to bring Atif back and make him the star - that the first episode is for free.

Shout out to William who in the midst of growing his family was able to convince Packet Pushers of this and fill their sad hearts with FOMO.