Transforming Our Learning ...

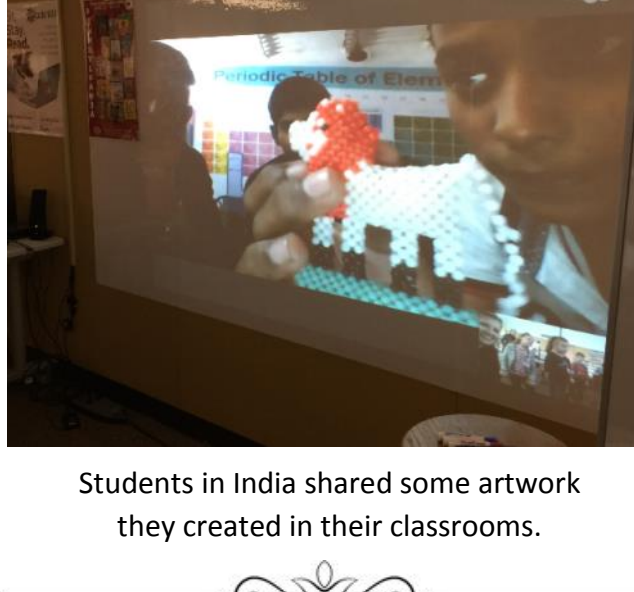

Elementary students across our district traveled approximately 45,000 "virtual" miles during Microsoft's "Open Hearts. Open Minds." Skype-a-Thon 2017. Karey Killian, librarian and media specialist (and Microsoft Innovative Educator), facilitated the learning adventures with the students. This is empowering!

Scientist Jean Pennycook Skyped from Antarctica so that our students could meet some of her favorite penguins!

These students met experts at Microsoft Headquarters to talk about Minecraft and their jobs.

Students in India shared some artwork they created in their classrooms.

Did you know that the Ozobot is one of the smallest programmable devices used in education? Smaller than a golf ball, these devices are the focal point of a lesson being taught in a fifth grade STEM class. The first step in the project is to design a blueprint on graph paper of a maze that the Ozobot will be programmed to navigate. The design is then transferred to a cardboard created maze and tested with the device. This is 21st century learning at its best!

Students work as a team to design their Ozobot maze blueprint.

The Ozobot—a pocket sized bot with infinite possibilities!
