

"...The point I am trying to make here is that we all need something in our lives to teach us responsibility, to give us joy, and to make us happy when times are tough. For some of us, horses are that something."

Spending time with horses can create those magical defining moments that change your path in life, that really help children and adults alike define what it is they respond to, connect with, can be passionate about. Horses have an instinctive way of telling us what they see in us and will always tell you the truth.

At Pacific NW Riding Academy, we specialize in creating those special, defining moments that you will remember forever.
