My $1.50 Wad Knocker

By Dean Rapp

I lost my favorite store bought Wad Knocker sometime last fall. While I got a lot of use out of that Wad Knocker I always thought it could work better with a little more weight. While trying to find a replacement I came to realize I could build one better than I could buy one. It was a simple process...I bought a 12" long brass tube and cut it in half. That $3.00 tube allowed me to create two Wad Knockers. I placed the tube in a vise with one end solidly against my workbench and proceeded to melt scrap lead down the middle. I rounded off the edges with a grinding wheel and that is all there is too it...A good source of lead is wheel weights from your local tire store.
