

BRITISH PRIME MINISTER KEIR STARMER AND HIS WIFE VICTORIA WHO WORKS FOR THE NHS

The screenshot shows a mobile browser interface with a dark blue header for 'The Guardian'. The page features a navigation bar with categories like News, Opinion, Sport, Culture, and Lifestyle. The main article is titled 'Stunned silence, hugs and a very big kiss: at home with the Starmers on election night' by Tom Baldwin. A yellow banner indicates the article is more than 7 months old. The article text describes the PM's biographer's experience with the Labour leader and his family on election night. A photo shows Keir Starmer and Victoria Starmer with other people, one holding a 'CHANGE' sign.

Keir Starmer who doesn't seem to have worn a wedding ring for at least a year is apparently an atheist, but his wife is Jewish and he gets together with his Jewish in-laws on Fridays, at least he did when they lived a few miles out of central London. As they sold their London house for £2M in July 2024 he probably lives in central London at Number 10 Downing Street with his wife. However, he is supposed to own land worth £10M and sold some land which had been used for donkeys for about £300k a few years ago.

His children are according to the media brought up in the Jewish faith and as Victoria is a vegetarian, his children apparently didn't have meat until they were quite old perhaps around the age of 10 and they are teenagers now. So they might have had amoxicillin the most frequently prescribed antibiotic in the UK and elsewhere which can cause asthma, the dose of which is considered by me to be way too high and by the President Professor Claire Anderson and CEO Paul Bennett of the Royal Pharmaceutical Society (RPS) who have so far refused to lower the dose.

As CEO of the IECC (International Ethical Chancellors Circle) with more than 200 professorships internationally coming, I had told Keir how asthmatics can become free of asthma and listed the chemicals that can cause asthma symptoms.

Since Keir had my papers six months ago, and has never replied to me, despite children and adults becoming asthmatic and diabetic, he obviously doesn't want the information to be in the news.

Perhaps it's because he encouraged his wife to take antibiotics or give their children antibiotics and they are either asthmatic, non-insulin dependent (T2D) or insulin-dependent (T1D) diabetics so he doesn't want the information to be in the news.

Perhaps he's delaying, playing for time wanting to get his children off their inhalers himself by using information from my research, or perhaps the pharmaceutical company GlaxoSmithKline (GSK) through the CEO Emma Walmsley who has met with him a couple of times, are after government funding, have offered him work as a barrister as he's prime minister, to try to influence his decision about taxpayer's money going to GSK.

Keir had coded that he was going to stay as prime minister for 10 years when we discussed a job for me in the NHS. His wife is also a solicitor and used to work for him. As we discussed a possible role for him in the NHS as a barrister which he coded he was interested in, while he is prime minister it's possible that he thought that his wife might also like to work as a solicitor for the NHS to help him, as he would have duties as a prime minister. The work wouldn't be difficult, and all the ideas are likely to come from me as a possible Director of Prevention of Diseases and Deformities, and I would simply have simply copied him in my emails to food companies for example.

Keir had coded to me that he wanted a job in the NHS possibly because he could work mostly from home, and he may have had ideas about his wife also working with him again.

Amanda Pritchard CEO of the NHS has also ignored me from the time that I first wrote to her on 27 December 2023 which is why I have had to contact chancellors and others internationally. Amanda Pritchard notified the NHS England Board on 25 February 2025 that she was resigning when in fact Keir should have sacked her. Perhaps he didn't because he feared that she might expose him. I have written hundreds of emails to both and have over 8,000 emails to file.

As a result, I wrote to hundreds of members of the House of Lords on Friday evening and throughout the night on Saturday 1 March 2025 asking them to contact King Charles III for help. I have said that the penalty for possession of cocaine for personal use should be reduced to £500 or community service.
