

Sacred Scripture

30th SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

In this next teaching on Joy admits the Cross, we will focus on the sorrowful mysteries of the Rosary. The first sorrowful mystery is the Agony in the Garden. We learn two things from Jesus' example. The first is that suffering itself is evil while the offering of suffering as penance is good. We also learn that God's will is the path to joy admits the Cross. God's will is obviously the path to joy when we are talking about turning away from what is sinful and doing what is loving. God's will is obviously the path to joy when the Lord is calling us to make a sacrifice for the good of others. Do we believe that God's will is the path to joy when it conflicts with our wills? Garth Brooks sung about a version of this in his song "Unanswered Prayers." However, what if I desire to do something in life and God desires me to do something else such as a different profession. Someone may want to be a soldier but God wants them to be a mechanic. Or someone may want to be married but God wants them to be celibate in either priesthood, religious life or consecrated virginity. It is good to know what we want. It is better to know what God wants for each of us. God's will is the path to joy. If we believe it, then we act on it.

Dear brothers and sisters in Christ,

I am writing to advise you on another attack on the family, namely, disobedience to God’s will. It is a subtle attack and the first attack on the first human family, Adam and Eve. The temptation begins with a question that confuses what we believe in Jesus’ teaching. Then it continues with a slight twisting of the truth about we want. Then the temptation finalizes with presenting either God as an adversary or another family member as an adversary. Jesus’ temptation in the desert teaches us how to avoid or escape this trap. We use the Gospel message as taught by the Apostles. In particular, we use the fourth commandment, “Honor your father and mother.” The son or daughter who honors their father and mother is the married man who honors his wife and the married woman who honors her husband. It is also the single or celibate person who honors all persons. Learn how to honor our parents teaches us how to honor God and follow His will to peace, joy and love. Let us use the Gospel message to avoid this trap.

In the hearts of JMJ,

Fr Comeaux
