

Sacred Scripture

28th SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

In this next catechism concerning Joy admits the Cross, we shall talk about the joy of obedience. Some may not understand the connection between joy and obedience. Some may believe that obedience is losing the fight between our will and someone else's. Thus, obedience is seen as an act of being impelled to do something against our will. If this is what obedience is, then there is no joy in it. Rather, obedience is the act of placing oneself at the service of the other, namely God, and doing what is asked of us out of love. The love is why there is joy in obedience. Sometimes our bodies or our minds may not cooperate with that choice to obey. This is why obedience can be a cross. For example, when the Church asks us to give up red meat on Fridays of Advent and Lent, we may choose to do so but our bodies and minds may rebel against this fasting. We take up our cross by denying the cravings of our bodies and minds for that day and joyfully offer it in service to our God and Lord Jesus Christ

Dear brothers and sisters in Christ,

I am writing to encourage you not to fall into one of the traps of the evil one to break families apart, namely grumbling when asked to do something. When we grumble, we begin to treat the one we love as an enemy. If this behavior continues, it may spill over into other forms of disrespect that work to destroy the bridge of friendship and family rather than building and repairing it. The Lord loves a cheerful giver. If we choose to do something, let us choose to do it joyfully. If we struggle to do so, then we can simply ask the Holy Spirit to give us the gift of cheerful giving.

In the hearts of JMJ,

Fr Comeaux
