

Sacred Scripture

As we continue in the catechesis about joy admits the cross, I shall talk about how listening is necessary for this joy. Active listening to God is an act of love itself. We are in that moment denying ourselves and placing ourselves at the service of God while we are listening. We cast aside any demands, expectations, complaints or ideas. We don't do this because our issues are not important to God. We cast them aside because we trust in God to know our hearts and take care of our needs. Some may even discover that when we listen to God, God may in turn listen to us. This is because we are sharing a moment with each other of making a gift of ourselves to each other. Another way of saying this is sharing a silent moment with God. God is always active and always actively loving each of us. Therefore, we strive to listen, if strife is necessary, and share in the moment with God.

Dear brothers and sisters in Christ,

Let us rejoice in the gifts the Lord gives to each of us. When we fail to rejoice in the gifts of our brothers and sisters, we work against God who gave these gifts to them. Gifts from God, whether they be natural ability, acquired skill or supernatural charisms, are not reasons for arrogance or envy. Instead, they are a reason to praise our God in heaven who wonderfully creates each and every one of us.
