Occupational therapy
is a profession that helps people of all ages
do the things they want or need to do in their lives.

In this session, we will provide an overview of the field, compare it to
other healthcare
professions, and
discuss potential
pathways to becoming a practitioner.

Speaker bio: Elise Pohlhammer, OT/s, is a third-year OTD student at Tufts University, where she is also a Fellow of the Graduate Leadership in Inclusion, Diversity, and Equity (GLIDE) program. She graduated from the University of California, Davis in 2019 with a BS in Human Development and BA in Psychology.
