ABOUT US

A Cleveland landmark, the City Greenhouse had its origins in 1902 as a nursery, growing plants to beautify City-owned parks and public spaces. While City beautification is still one of our goals, the Greenhouse and grounds have since evolved into a unique public park, free to visit and open year-round. Today, visitors to Rockefeller Park Greenhouse will find a botanical garden with indoor and outdoor display areas featuring specialty plant collections, rotating seasonal floral displays, and enchanting theme gardens.

GET INVOLVED

Friends of Greenhouse (FOG) is our 501 C-3 nonprofit support group. FOG supports the Greenhouse through funding improvement projects, planning events, and promoting community awareness and involvement. There are many ways to get involved, from becoming a member to participating in volunteer opportunities.

MEMBERSHIP & SUPPORT

Please help FOG to continue to be an advocate for the Greenhouse. As one of only a few City-owned botanical gardens in the nation that is admission-free, we depend on membership support, donations, and benefit events to help keep the Greenhouse blooming. ## OUTDOOR EXHIBITS

THE MALL

Structured and serene, The Mall is a traditional formal garden with clipped hedges enclosing a manicured grass center. Elegant statues placed at each corner of the garden represent the four seasons.

WILLOTT IRIS GARDEN

The Willott Iris Garden is a tribute to iris experts and longtime Greenhouse volunteers, Tony and Dorothy Willott. The Garden features many of the award-winning varieties that they grew and bred at Rockefeller Park Greenhouse.

JAPANESE GARDEN

Developed during the 1960s, this garden uses plants and materials to suggest a soothing, ancient, and faraway landscape. Of special interest is the Metasequoia, or Dawn Redwood Tree, grown from one of six seeds brought from Japan.

LATIN AMERICAN GARDEN

Throughout the summer, the Latin American Garden showcases cacti, succulents, flowering plants, and tropical fruits found in the Latin region of Central and South America.
