Robbins-Gioia Supports SAF/AQCI CON-IT Modernization and Business Transformation

Client: Department of the Air Force, SAF/AQCI CON-IT Program

The Challenge

The Air Force is modernizing its contract writing environment through CON-IT, the official contract writing system designed to retire legacy systems including SPS, ConWrite, and ACPS. As the program grows, SAF/AQCI must support a large user population, improve data integrity and consistency, mitigate transition risk, and continue delivering modernization in a rapidly changing federal acquisition landscape.

The Solution

Robbins-Gioia supports SAF/AQCI with business analysis, transition support, Agile process improvement, and modernization expertise. The RG team helps assess business needs, document and represent key requirements, support users through transition, and strengthen CON-IT as a modern, efficient system of record for Air Force contracting.

Approach

RG works as a remote support team under SAF/AQCI, helping advance the modernization and development of CON-IT. The team provides specialized business analysis, requirement elicitation and documentation, transition planning, change management support, and strategic input for future enhancements. RG also supports planning for the transition and sunsetting of legacy systems while helping improve Agile processes that deliver new functionality to CON-IT users.

The Impact

- ▼ Robbins-Gioia indirectly supports more than 8,000 CON-IT users by helping improve system modernization, contract writing data integrity, user transition, and acquisition workflow efficiency.
- ▼ Through its support of CON-IT, RG helps SAF/AQCI advance DoW acquisition transformation goals, reduce operational risk, and provide users with modern tools that help them better support the warfighter.
