Thanks for taking the time to sit down with us and answer some questions. Your stunning audio and visual content led us to you, we checked out some of your content and our staff really were intrigued by your music. We listened to all the EW EP. Tell us and our readers a little bit more about yourself, how was your upbringing? Where are you from? What does M137 mean?

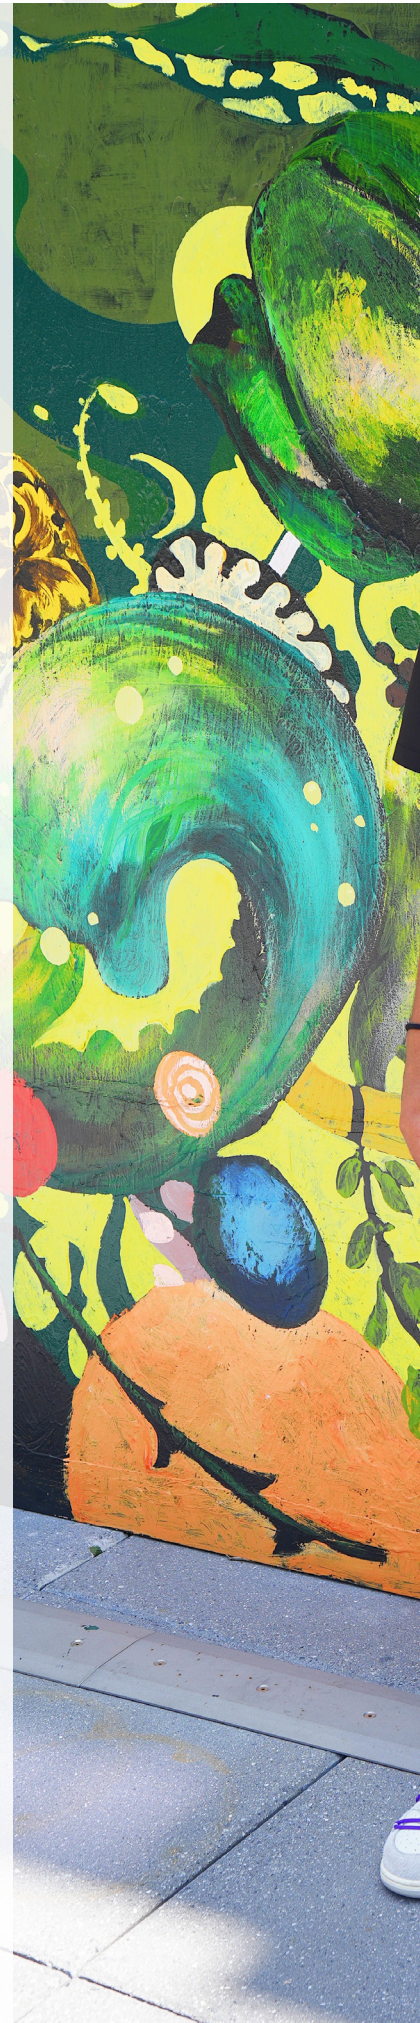

Hey, I appreciate you all for having me! I was born in Miami and lived in South Florida for the earlier years of my life and then moved to Atlanta. Even after I moved, I went back to Miami every weekend to visit family. Growing up was cool, I can't complain about anything. There definitely was adversity but it could always be worse. I was raised by OGs and real pioneers of the rap game and the streets. I won't go too deep into detail but It's a lot that I saw that would blow the average person's mind. M137 stands for MARS137*. MARS137* stands for Make Aspirations Reality, Simple. MARS is a planet most of us haven't physically seen but will bet our life that it exists. You must believe in yourself and your dreams b4 anyone else does for them to come to fruition, once you can visualize it before its reality or in front of your face it's possible. What inspired you to create the EP Emotional Warfare?

This project was a direct reflection of me and everything I was experiencing at the time it was released and also how I feel in general. I was inspired by my relationships, taking trips & doing fly shit, getting money and having various business ventures.

What is the message you hope listeners take away from the EP?

Honestly, there wasn't necessarily a message I wanted them to take away from this. I really wanted everybody to step into my world and vibe with me and see what I see without seeing it if that makes sense. I also feel like a lot of things I touched on were related. I be saying some real shit you just gotta really listen to understand. For the most part I make music for pretty women, dudes trying to boss up or thats already having motion. If you don't fall into any of those categories what I'm saying prolly won't resonate with you. Also, the whole project was mixed and mastered in house.

What is your favorite song on the EP and why?

My favorite song is either Nikki T or You knew dis already

What do you feel has been your biggest area of growth as an artist from Brinks Truck until now?

Honestly, just finding my sound. I experienced so many different situations since then, a lot of blessings and also a few lessons. I know you can definitely here the growth and the real-life situational pictures I'm painting.

What is the most challenging part of being a rapper?

Staying consistent and making everything happen without a team. Giving other people's opinion too much power can be a problem as well.

What is the most rewarding part of being a rapper?

Knowing that I can impact how somebody is feeling with my music. I make music that makes you wanna get fly af and count up!

What advice would you give to other aspiring rappers?

My best advice is to keep working, being intentional, and stay relentless. Always see where you going don't focus on where you're at.

What are your plans for the future?

I would rather my actions speak for themselves I don't like over speaking on anything before it happen. All I can say is longevity and abundance.

What is one thing you want your fans to know about you?

Lmao I feel like nobody knows that I've been on a strict alkaline vegan diet for like 4 years now..
