A breakout mile

They all have `em, whether they be Meadow Skipper, Pinkman. or a multitude of others that finally realize what this racing thing is all about.

She was a lanky 5-year-old black mare, a little on the ribby side, who was languishing in a $1,500 claimer that I raced against. And she was lucky if she got a check going in 2:07.

I never really paid that much attention to her, had no idea of her breeding or what, other that she was owned by two old farmers up in the northern part of the state.

One night don't someone claim her... $1,800 with the mare allowance - keep in mind that back then that was the price of a new Ford Falcon - and the two "old" (probably in their fifties) guys were kind of crestfallen.

I chuckled to my cronies that I'd be clickin' my heels and buying drinks at the bar if I'd gotten $1,800 for THAT.

Three days later I'm on the jog track and here come the two farmers happily leading the mare up to their barn.

"We got her back!" they said to me excitedly. I just half-smiled and raised my eyebrows as I went by.

Evidently the claim had been voided because of some mistake but they kept her out the next week and waited until a Saturday night condition to race her back.

"They're getting a little high on her," we all laughed in the grandstand as she post paraded in a tough field of fillies. These things will go in 2:04, easy!"

Joe, who was stabled next to them, was unusually quiet. We looked at him.

"Those guys gave me $50 to bet on her... on the nose," he finally admitted just about a minute to post.

"WHAT?" we all screamed. "BOOK IT! She can't win in here!"

"Ah... I... don't know," said Joe, "those guys know what they're doing." He studied the board as she was 30-1 and added "... I think I'd better bet it."

"Don't. No. She can't..." we all said as he scooted for the window. And he just made it.

"They're OFF!" called the announcer and her regular driver John shot for the lead, a new tactic. She wired the field and drew off to win by six - unchallenged - in 2:01.4.

And paid something like $70.

Oh yeah. And quieted us down as Joe had dodged a bullet. The next day on the jog track I see John and asked "what the hell happened with her?"

"Cheetah's cries," he said as he spun sideways in the jogcart seat. "I don't know but dat mare, dat race, cheetah's cries, I could go in 1:59 if I needed."

She settled in to be a legit $10,000 claimer and would drop down to a condition race and win. She was comfortable with 2:02 but raced with the top fillies and mares.

That was her breakout mile and it nearly broke Joe too.

And a lesson learned.
