2025-26 Denver Broncos Schedule Released

Home slate highlighted by opener against Titans and two prime-time games

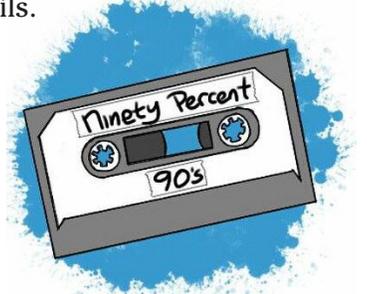

The Broncos' path back to the postseason will begin—and end—at Empower Field at Mile High. Denver opens the 2025 season at home against the Tennessee Titans. After the opener, the Broncos play just once at home over the next 40 days: a Week 4 “Monday Night Football” matchup vs. the Cincinnati Bengals. Denver’s other prime-time home game comes in Week 10 against the Las Vegas Raiders on “Thursday Night Football.” The Broncos’ remaining divisional home games include Week 11 vs. the Kansas City Chiefs—before a Week 12 bye—and Week 18 vs. the Los Angeles Chargers.

Block Party on June 7th!

Formerly the Federal Boulevard Business Improvement District, Jeff Park @ Federal debuts its new name and spirit with an inaugural summer event called “Celebrate Jeff Park.” The bash runs from 10 am to 4 pm on 25th Avenue between Federal and Eliot. It features live music by Ninety Percent 90’s and Special Blend, improv, vendors, food, local art and pet adoptions. Keep an eye out for their playful mascot, Jeff! The celebration highlights the neighborhood’s community vibe and pet-friendly charm. Visit jeffparkatfederal.com for details.

Stadium Parking Plan Ahead of Schedule

Denver's Department of Transportation and Infrastructure is developing a new Curbside Area Management Plan (CAMP) for Jefferson Park. This plan will focus on the streets and avenues impacted by stadium events. This is also known to some residents as the Residential Parking Permit program which provides "A" permits to some, but not all, residents.

CAMPs are developed to comprehensively address an area's changing parking challenges while acknowledging the needs of all user groups. In addition to the Stadium, the City is also working on plans for Highland, Cherry Creek North and the Botanic Gardens. The process engages a Stakeholder Working Group (SWG) to identify parking challenges and solutions. The SWG for the Stadium plan consists of 15 individuals. The group had its second of three meetings on April 10. The public will be engaged more broadly once a draft plan is available.

Additional information can be found on the DOTI webpage. The Jefferson Park Post will report on the plan's progress in each monthly issue. Sign up to be the first to know at newsletter@jeffersonpark.org!

Jefferson Park Pet Spotlight: Perry Remembering Perry Bechen (2010-2025), by Sara Bechen

Perry was my first "foster" dog—and my fastest foster fail. One look and we were in love. For 15 years, this sweet Boston Terrier was my ride-or-die: cruising in my bike basket, hunting for snacks in the park, and ignoring balls and squirrels. He loved watching the world from a window, found comfort in his golden retriever best friend, and rarely missed a Monday car ride to JPP for office time. He lived for food, sunshine, and naps. He saved his bark for the mailman and snuggles for bedtime. I still hear his footsteps. He was the best boy, forever.

Bites & Brews in the Neighborhood

Featuring Nikki and Christopher Mohaupt

When did you open? May 4th 2013 (May the fourth be with you!)

Tell us more! We just added another steel tip dartboard. We now have frozen drinks on the menu and look forward to our guests sipping a tasty frose on our patio this summer. We have a great space for parties with up to 30 guests. Tons of board games are available to keep you entertained as well.

What are you known for? We are a scratch kitchen, 20 beers on tap, and a fun cocktail menu. We also have extensive gluten free options.

Most popular items? Everyone has their own favorite burger, salad, sandwich, or taco. Many come in for our fish and chips with our house made tartar sauce.
