

#55 My Christmas Poem

The Christian world celebrates Christmas Day on December 25th
But here's the thing that has me miffed;

Is this day really so special that we should exchange gifts
To show how much we love each other and or to mend rifts?

Should we not show this love daily and the willingness to forgive?
Is that not the message and the way Christ showed us to live?
Do we really love more when we're reminded of Jesus' birth?
Aren't we aware of how much each and every day is worth?

We should see that these opportunities come all the time,
Unexpectedly and often without reason or rhyme.

When we live our lives open to what God wants us to see
He'll show us how to spread the gift He gave us for free.

God gave the world the gift of his own son to pay the price
Because nothing we can do on our own will suffice.
The penalty for sin is death, and we're all born with that debt.
And all which haven't accepted God's gift, don't understand their Salvation yet.

But the followers of Christ have accepted God's way
Thus, we celebrate Jesus' birth each year on this day.
Even though He wasn't born that late in the year
This day has been chosen to spread goodwill and cheer.

Through these acts of love and kindness we hope to spread the news
How God lives in us, foretold in the written history of the Jews.

Israel was God's chosen nation to show the world His word.

Christians are those throughout the world who have understood and Heard

God knocking on the door to our hearts of stone

When He told us He didn't desire us to go through this life alone.

He told us to read & study the Holy Bible so we'll know that when we die
We'll ALL be with Him forever in Heaven without ever doubting why!
