

10 Tactics and Strategies

By Omowale Adewale

- 1. Remain aware at all times – I saw and heard them coming. I watched their movements. I saw the woman record me. I saw the enemy try to remove branches after I told them to go back where they came.
- 2. I record the enemy – I recorded 20 minutes of the incident for documentation. The cameras on the property also record. You see and hear only 12:53 of the confrontation. These snowmobilers were the fourth group trying to travel through my property. I show the evil and disrespect for Black People's land and for private property. I also document their lies and soft threats.
- 3. I respect my enemy as an enemy from the outset. – I am respectful as I am taught to be. I do not change myself to win the battle. I am aware the enemy is my enemy. The white woman cannot use her faux-weaknesses and vulnerable statements on me. In the enemy is forced to change their approach. The enemy will show themselves in the end.
- 4. I am prepared to strike my enemy – While there is no perfection the most accurately close is good enough. I am a seasoned fighter, so I am calm. I am armed and more resourceful than they are aware. However, I also know NYS self-defense law is not Texas law. I am more motivated and smarter than they are. I am prepared to de-escalate through training.
- 5. I disarm my enemy with understanding and intellect – I understand that my enemy can turn their vehicles around without reverse. I know my enemy has traversed through my property before.
- 6. I teach my enemy – Undocumented immigrants looking for access to a better quality of living, Private Property. Whether I say "No Trespassing" or you see the words you are well-informed to retreat.
- 7. My enemy wants to trick me. My firmness blocks them. – Mixing up whether they have passed through before. Saying they did not see a "No Trespassing" sign. They pretended they will return to plow my driveway later. Bringing up their snowmobile-riding children as if that is a suitable reason. But in the end my enemy shows himself as my enemy as he threatens me.
- 8. I am relaxed in the face of my enemy – Stay under control. Do not raise the tension of the moment. Do not be urged to use physical or your weapon on the enemy. De-escalate wherever possible. Safety is still my No. 1 priority. I jest a bit in saying "Praise Him" when they tell me they are Christian. I am clear when I say, "You haven't washed my hand".
- 9. My enemy wanted to wait me out. I wait them out and they retreat without so much as a scuffle – They have children and privilege that force them to leave my private property. Even though their children are fully capable they are provided for by adults and cannot wait.
- 10. My enemy thinks they understand my resources via in-person or online. – They do not – I am not alone. I am armed. I was armed. Beyond that, I am resourceful as I was not alone. Everything is a trap. Their hate is their first major mistake. Change the narrative: They are emotionally driven.

--

Written Wednesday February 24, 2021 in response to Sunday February 21, 2021, white snowmobilers refusal to immediately vacate the private property of Black farmland.